British Request Hitler To Offer Counter-Plans For Rhineland Problem

Official Sources Say Germans Are Free to Express Point of View and to Make Any Alternative Offers.

BRIEF INTERIM

London Tells Berlin That Proposed International Force Would Exist for Brief Period Only.

London, March 21 (AP)—Official British quarters announced today that they had invited Adolf Hitler to make counter-proposals to the tentative plan of four remaining Locarno members

These official sources said that the Germans are free to express their point of view and to make alternative suggestions

Tempering the sharpness of the peace plan announced in the British white paper yesterday, London sent word to the Reichsfuehrer that the intermin period during which the proposed international force would occupy the Rhine zone would be "as short as the British can make it," and possibly only a few weeks..

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, was preparing to go to Chequers, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's official country residence, late today but declared he was prepared to return to London at once should the Germans desire a conference

Official French sources in London pointed out that France had made five major concessions in reaching the four-power proposal in return for which they had effected a virtual military alliance with Great Britain, Belgium and Italy.

French Concessions.

The French listed as their concessions:

France took no immediate action in the Rhineland as the peace treaty permitted.

France agreed to a plan which does not include sanctions or punitive actions against Germany.

France has dropped the stipulation that German troops must be removed from the Rhine zone.

France has agreed to drop the Franco-Soviet mutual military assistance pact if the Hague court of International Justice renderers a decision against the two-power treaty.

If the Hague court's decision is favorable to France, she will not insist that Germany withdraw its troops from the Rhineland.

On receipt of the British invitation to make counter-suggestions to the Locarno proposal, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Hitler's ambassador at large, planned to fly to Berlin. League of Nations sources expected he would bring back suggestions for modification of the four-power plan for a Rhineland settlement.

He probably will return to London Monday, German sources said.

The league council was adjourned over the week-end, while the other powers awaited anxiously Germany's reply to the program drawn up by diplomats of Britain, France, Belgium and Italy for liquidation of the crisis aroused by Germany's occupation.

The invocation by Britain, France, Belgium and Italy of Article XI of the league covenant providing for action against any threat of war—with its implication of possible sanctions if Germany rejected the Locarno plan—visibly alarmed some league representatives.

"I want to be absolutely sure that all these measures are necessary and that the last word has been spoken to Germany," foreign minister Peter Much of Denmark declared last night at the secret session of the league council, to which the proposals were submitted.

Other council representatives, notably Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of Poland, also insisted the Locarno powers should not attempt to push their plan through the league before its huge, all-embracing proposals could be considered thoroughly.

Several council delegates expressed fear the Reich could not accept the projected creation of a new buffer zone in Germany under patrol of an international force, to replace the once-demilitarized Rhineland pending formulation of a new treaty, or submission of the dispute over the Franco-Soviet pact of the world court.

British officials insisted, however, that while their government hoped the Reich would accept the program, it was subject to mutually acceptable changes and Germany would be given time—presumably until after the March 29 Reichstag—to reply.

Berlin, March 21 — Germany raised a bitter protest today against the decisions of the other Locarno nations to settle the Rhineland crisis, the four-power proposals falling into Adolf Hitler's camp with a completely unexpected thud

Foreign office officials winced under every one of the proposals for creation of a new buffer zone in Germany, for submission of the Reich's arguments against the Franco-Soviet pact to the World Court and for the calling of an international peace conference.

The press charged that Der Fuehrer had been dealt "a blow below

Father Divine Buys Sweeney Property in Wilbur, as Broker Foresees Many Local Benefits

28 Per Cent Increase in Income Tax Collections

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Income tax collections of $389,694,381 for the first 20 days of March were reported by the treasury today, representing an increase of 28 per cent over the comparable period of last year.

"Receipts are conforming very closely with the department's estimates," was the only comment from treasury officials.

The statistics were telegraphed from collectors at the various districts. All of the money in the total has not yet been paid in to treasury vaults.

Collections for the calendar year 1936 through March 20, have amounted to $469,365,339, an increase of 30 per cent over the same period last year.

The treasury comment that collections were holding close to estimates was considered by some observers a notice that President Roosevelt's $792,000,000 tax program should not be curtailed.

There have been expressions of opposition in congressional quarters to levying taxes in an election year.

Father Divine, who is God incarnate to thousands of negro followers, is extending his real estate holdings and on Friday took title to the former Sweeney property on Chapel street in Wilbur. Recently he also took title to the Benjamin Davis farm of 160 acres at Krumville for which he paid cash. Both deals were transacted through the real estate office of John Dellay of Rosendale, who has handled all of Father Divine's real estate transactions in Ulster county. This makes four farms and one city residence property that the negro leader has purchased in Ulster county. The three other farms are at New Paltz, High Falls and Atwood

This morning a deed was filed in the Chapel street property. The the Chapel street property. The deed is from Katherine Rusch of the town of Rosendale conveying to Esther Grace, Sarah Cooper, H. Rest of 20 West 115th street, New York city, and Constella Madison of 43 West 130th street, New York city, the residence property on Chapel street The consideration given in the deed is $1 and there is a $3 stamp tax.

Freeman Gets Communication

The Freeman today received a communication from Mr Dellay stating that the former Sweeney property has been in his indirect possession for several months to clear up the title. Mr. Dellay writes "I am proud that Father Divine has succeeded in purchasing same, and I hope many of the business people of Kingston and vicinity will feel the same because they will gain by it. He is really a great help not alone to thousands of people but to millions, as well as to every business place in different communities. Business people in town should appreciate not only his good work but the business they may get from him in general."

"I am sure," wrote Mr. Dellay "that when they begin to know who Father Divine is they will help in keeping him in Ulster county and to look for better prosperity with success, honesty, justice and truth".

Father Divine's plans for the use of the former Sweeney property were not made public but undoubtedly he will renovate and repair the property and use it in connection with his three Divine Cities in Ulster county.

Buys Another Farm

Mr. Dellay also announced today that Father Divine had acquired title to the Benjamin Davis farm of 160 acres at Krumville, for which he paid cash. Father Divine was not using this farm as he is operating his three other farms, but has placed the Davis farm under the management of a German couple, who are his followers. The farm is being used solely for farming purposes.

Father Divines Farms

In addition to the old Sweeney property in this city and the Davis farm at Krumville, Father Divine is the owner of three other large farms in Ulster county.

His first purchase in Ulster county was the farm just outside of New Paltz. This farm is located on a hill overlooking the valley lying between the farm and the village. This farm is used as a meeting place for the negro's followers. Father Divine had planned to erect a mansion on this property, and the brick for the foundation were delivered to the property last summer.

Later Father Divine purchased the Cherry Hill Farm at High Falls where his followers also meet.

His third purchase was the Arthur Hasbrouck Farm at Atwood.

Whiff of Ether Cures Man

West New York, N. J., March 21 (AP)—A whiff of ether was apparently all that was needed to cure William Galmann, 24, of a strange paralysis. Galmann's physician, Dr. Louis Schneider, was puzzled by the ailment when he was called in Thursday. His right leg and part of the body were numb and he could not feel pin pricks. The doctor said he knew his patient was unusually nervous and inclined to dwell at length on any ailment, so he decided to anesthetize him. Just as Galmann was losing consciousness, the paralysis symptoms disappeared and the right leg shot into the air, narrowly missing the doctor.

Bruno's Counsel Feel Sure of Saving Him From Electric Chair

Trenton, N. J., March 21 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's lawyers, showing increased confidence of saving him from execution, hurried preparations today for a frontal attack on the testimony of Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, a principal state's witness at the condemned man's trial for the Lindbergh baby kidnap-slaying.

The defense hopes appeared to have taken a sudden upward surge, and Hauptmann himself was pictured as feeling certain he will escape the penalty. He is under sentence to die March 31.

C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, said he did not see how Hauptmann could be executed in view of "the facts in our possession."

The defense hopes were buoyed by reports that Robert W. Hicks, a special investigator in the case, had obtained an important affidavit from Samuel W. Garelick, serving a kidnaping sentence in the Florida state penitentiary at Raiford, which he said "will clear up satisfactorily some interesting points in the Lindbergh kidnap case."

"Many points in my mind," Hicks said, "as to what the Florida prisoner knew concerning the Hauptmann-Lindbergh case were thoroughly cleared up."

Hicks said he would seek further data in Miami during the course of his check-up on an interview Dr. Condon had with Garelick in 1934. Garelick was sentenced for a kidnaping at Miami in 1933.

Garelick is a native of Bayonne, N. J., Hicks said.

Governor Harold G. Hoffman, meanwhile, was still trying to arrange with Dr. Condon for an interview to clarify various points in the case which the governor thinks have by no means been settled satisfactorily.

Fisher also was hopeful of talking to Dr. Condon and felt he might hear today from Attorney General David T. Wilentz whom he asked earlier in the week to fix a date for an interview with Jafsie.

SOME ONE TRIED TO FIRE SHED IN WILBUR LAST NIGHT

Shortly before 10 o'clock last night some one attempted to set fire to a frame shed at the corner of DeWitt and Abeel streets, but the fire was discovered by John Stock of Abeel street, and distinguished before it had gained headway. A Chevrolet coach was stored in the shed. According to the police report some one had sprinkled kerosene oil over the outside of the building and then set a match to it. The fire is being investigated. The damage was slight.

Charters Yacht

Singapore, Straits Settlements, March 21 (AP)—The government granted Charles Chaplin permission today to charter the official yacht, "Sea Belle," which has been called the "Honeymoon Yacht" since it was used last year by James H. R. Cromwell and his bride, the former Doris Duke. Chaplin and his leading lady, Miss Paulette Goddard, who arrived here from Shanghai on a holiday tour of the world, were still silent as to whether they were or would be married. They intended to cruise the Malay Archipelago

Perils of Pestilence Add New Threats In Stricken Areas

Harrisburg, Pa., March 21 (AP).—The perils of pestilence emerged from receding waters today, brandishing new threats to stricken central Pennsylvania.

Airplanes and motor cars raced doctors, nurses, medical supplies, clothing, food and pure water to shuddering refugees in debris-strewn valleys of the Susquehanna and Juniata rivers.

Rain drenched the areas again today, but the U. S. weather bureau said there was little danger of the rivers rising again. Snow was forecast for the week-end.

Governor Earle appealed to the federal government for $10,000,000 to help Pennsylvania arise, stressing the "grave conditions" he viewed from an airplane He wired Washington that local and state governments would be unable to provide the money.

Relief work increased its pace, but other activities virtually were at a standstill. Reconstruction was restricted by the slowness with which the floods subsided.

Food and water supplies were threatened in many communities. Gas and electric service was crippled or shut down. Heat was a luxury. Relief agencies and police said more than 50,000 were homeless in central and eastern Pennsylvania.

The death toll in the area reached 28. Appalling conditions were described in first definite reports sent out of Williamsport, where the disaster kept a three-day secret of flood, fire privation—and heroism. The business district is a mass of twisted timbers, merchandise and what-not. Estimates of the damage ranged from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000.

An appeal was sent out for medical supplies, food, clothing, and stoves. Williamsport shared what it received with Lock Haven, where six army planes left serum from Philadelphia, defying disaster on a soggy landing field.

The State Health Department put Sunbury under strict quarantine. Nearly 100 cases of chicken pox, measles and scarlet fever were reported, with scattered cases of other illnesses.

Harrisburg spent a feverish night administering to a growing list of homeless and destitute. Many streets in the residential section to mained flooded and the water supply is threatened

Looting increased.

WPA AMAZES WESTCHESTER COUNTY, SENDS CHLORIDE

White Plains, N. Y., March 21 (AP)—An announcement from Albany today said Westchester was among 25 counties in the state to which the WPA is sending tons of chloride of lime for use in disinfecting flooded areas.

Mild was a mild word for the surprise of officials The county engineer said he wouldn't know what to do with the shipment and WPA District Director John Buckley Bryan was at a loss where to send WPA crews with the lime

Westchester experienced no flood conditions this week. It is the county which last fall received $696,000 of WPA funds for malaria control work but has never had a case of malaria.

Nanuet Robbers Sought

Newark, N. J., March 21 (AP)—Police and federal agents combed Newark highways today in a search for three men who held up the Nanuet (N. Y.) National Bank and escaped with $5,000 after kidnaping two girls and stealing a number of autos in their flight across the New Jersey border Search for the bandits centered in Newark after an alarm was broadcast from New York state that the desperadoes had stolen two automobiles at Spring Valley, N. Y., and with two unidentified Pearl River, N. Y., girls aboard as hostages, driven to this city.

State Forces Speeding Rehabilitation Today, Ulster Gets Chloride

Albany, N. Y., March 21 (AP)—Rehabilitation forces speeded action today to repair the damage wrought by floods, snow and sleet in New York state.

Estimates of the loss accumulated slowly. In addition to two known deaths, incomplete surveys placed the property damage at more than $3,000,000, but this figure appeared considerably below the eventual total.

Approximately 8,000 persons made homeless in the Binghamton and Albany sections were returning today to evacuated areas. Relief and health agencies distributed typhoid serum, disinfectants, food, clothing and other supplies.

At Binghamton 500 WPA workers spread lime over debris-strewn areas where the flood waters had withdrawn.

The Red Cross distributed a ton of canned beef and 12,000 pounds of cereal to the destitute.

Flood waters continued to recede. At Binghamton, the Susquehanna and the Chenango rivers dropped six to seven feet from the high point of three days ago. They still remained slightly above flood stage

To Treat Ulster Water

Following warnings of the State Health Department that thorough disinfecting of all flooded areas is imperative, the WPA announced that tons of chloride of lime would be used by emergency flood crews in the following counties:

Broome, Tioga, Tompkins, Chenango, Cortland, Otsego, Delaware, Sullivan, Ulster, Dutchess, Westchester, Rensselaer, Greene, Schoharie, Schenectady, Albany, Montgomery, Washington, Chemung, Steuben, Allegany, Livingston, Schuyler, Seneca and Cattaraugus

Carlisle Pontius, district WPA director at Elmira, announced that 2,000 men were working in Steuben county; 40 in Allegany, 20 in Ontario, 60 in Chemung, 60 in Schuyler and 50 in Seneca

Early estimates of flood and sleet damage included $500,000 to $1,000,000 damage to state highways estimated by Arthur W Brandt, state highway superintendent, and $1,250,000 at Binghamton compared to $1,578,000 last July, estimated by Binghamton press.

Plane Lightning Struck

Miami, Fla., March 21 (AP)—Capt. C W France, operations manager of Eastern Air Lines, said a bolt of lightning struck one of the company's large planes yesterday near Fort Bragg, N. C., knocking a small hole in the ship's fuselage and disabling its radio The ship's flight from New York was not impeded by the slight damage, the operations manager said, and the pilot at first thought it had been struck by a stray bullet from the fort Poughkeepsian Killed.

Peekskill, N. Y., March 21 (AP)—Body of a man found badly mangled on the New York Central Railroad tracks two miles south of Peekskill today was identified as that of Frank Craft, 29, of 114 Main street, Poughkeepsie. Identification was made from a card in his clothing issued by the department of labor.

FAMINE FEARED

Danger From Disease, Food and Water Famine Increase in New England and Ohio.

By THEODORE F KOOP

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)

With storm warnings flying along the North Atlantic coast and snow intensifying the suffering over the Pittsburgh - Johnstown - Wheeling areas, the Connecticut river wrought the most widespread havoc today as it surged with devastating and ceaseless fury over the populous business and industrial cities of Hartford and Middletown.

The death list stood at 167; but as rescue and rehabilitation work was rushed in 11 eastern states—after the worst floods in history in many localities—officials feared the toll would mount.

The number of homeless approached 300,000 persons.

The 53-foot flood crest of the Ohio diminished as it spread down the broad valley toward Huntington, W. Va., reaching Pomeroy and Point Pleasant, W. Va., and Gallipolis, Ohio.

But on down the river, lowland areas were flooded from Marietta to Cincinnati. Residents of Proctorville, O., opposite Huntington, awoke today to find themselves on an island. A ferry boat carried many to higher ground.

Hartford and Middletown were the hardest hit as the Connecticut river plunged down to Long Island Sound with a force never experienced before.

The cities were without electric power after a night of terror. Rain fell in sheets today as whole families of trapped residents were rescued. In Hartford, alone, more than 2,000 were homeless. The rains dashed whatever hopes had been held for quick recession of the river.

A dam on the Quinebaug, near Danielson, Conn., also was threatened by the new rains.

By CARL J. LALUMIA

(Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press).

Hartford, Conn., March 21—The muddy Connecticut river cut deep and unceasingly into the business area of this Capital City today, driving whole families at dawn into rain drenched streets

Rescue workers, after a sleepless night spent in streets darkened by the collapse of electric power service, intensified their activities at daybreak

They worked under fresh downpours of intermittent rains rescuing men, women and children who until dawn had preferred to run the risks of the greatest flood in the history of this insurance center rather than desert their water-soaked homes.

Even before then, an estimated 2,000 were homeless and damage was mounting past the $5,000,000 mark

From one large tenement house alone, located within the shadows of the Hartford Times Building, a score of persons were carried down ladders and transported by boats to higher ground.

Among them were gray-haired women enfeebled by age and schoolboys and girls clad in bathrobes.

One aged couple took with them only one of their possessions—a canary bird carefully sheltered in a covered cage

The most any of the rescued were permitted to load into the boats were one or two small bags

National guardsmen, naval militiamen, coast guardsmen, police and volunteers uniformly greeted the refugees as they reached dry ground with the question

"Have you any place to go?"

Those without relatives or friends were taken by automobile to emergency stations, already jammed with the more than 2,000 in a similar plight The others were transported to addresses they specified.

Crafts of all description were pressed into service—rowboats, canoes and power boats.

Stupendous Task Ahead.

With the dawn of another day—the third since the Connecticut river began its unprecedented rise—this city of 165,000 inhabitants faced a stupendous task of rehabilitation.

Telephone service, paralyzed since yesterday, was being restored slowly The city, however, remained without electric power, which failed early last night

Only unofficial reports that the river still was rising slowly were available Official readings were suspended at 7 o'clock last night because of the hazards involved in reaching the gauge by boat.

At that hour the height of the river as reported officially was re-

SOUTH AMERICAN FASCISM.

It is startling to find Fascism invading the Western Hemisphere. One political unit of this hemisphere—Paraguay—is now professing the Old World heresy. Or rather, its present head, Col. Rafael Franco, setting up a revolutionary government dominated by the army, professes Fascism in his country's name. He doesn't flaunt the term Fascism. He prefers the high-sounding phrase, "Totalitarian State," which means about the same thing—a state in which the government is operated on a rugged plan that tries to unify politics and business. The general idea certainly suggests a pocket edition of present-day Germany.

This is the natural aftermath of a suicidal war, just as Germany's present situation is. Nations shot to pieces by war offer an inviting field for reconstruction under a boss whose orders cannot be questioned. Whether sane or insane, such a government usually does something. And what Col. Franco now proposes, "a new Paraguay, freed from the evils of sectarian and industrial demagogy", is about what any country today may expect after a bitter war, no matter how it ends. We need not get over-excited, however, about words. Here is merely another Latin-American dictator, of the familiar type but merely using new and high-sounding words, undertaking to run the smallest South American republic in about the same fashion as the late Gen. Gomez ran Venezuela for a quarter of a century. Fortunately Latin-America is outgrowing the type.

MONEY TO MARRY.

King Edward opened up a world-wide problem when he asked the British Parliament to give him a raise in pay so he could support a wife in case he should want to marry. There are probably millions of men in this country in the same fix. They would probably marry if they could afford it. Great numbers of them are on relief work, which as everybody knows is nothing much to start a family on, and which may peter out, anyway, before long. Much private work is even more uncertain. And the jobs now paying what used to be considered enough wages or salary to justify setting up housekeeping are not very plentiful.

Here is a field for some new Townsend to enter. With all our political and economic movements for the benefit of various ages and classes, it is strange that we don't seem to have any devoted to financing matrimony among young people. Such a movement, if old-fashioned ideas are valid, would make a lot of folks happy and promote industry and morality. And incidentally it would be good for business.

NO FREE SEEDS.

Yes, Uncle Sam has no free seeds today. For 12 years the Department of Agriculture has been trying to get the folks back home to understand this fact, and yet with the first signs of spring thousands of appeals pour in from every point of the compass. Farmers, villagers and business men in city skyscrapers all want free seeds, and are usually explicit about the variety and quantity.

They should understand once for all that it's no use. There is no appropriation for seeds for free distribution, and no philanthropist has given the government any seeds to distribute. The place to buy seeds is at the seed store. Here in one place, at least, where private enterprise has come into its own again.

BLOOD PRESSURE

High blood pressure, a physician finds, doesn't confine itself to the body's circulatory system. It appears also in the victim's behavior, and often produces devastating effects on other people. For high-pressure salesmen, promoters and politicians are prone to high blood pressure, and it is probably the inward pressure that produces the outward pressure.

So it becomes evident that, with all our physical worries, the American public has never taken this peril seriously enough. If the doctors could just reduce the blood pressure of the aforesaid salesmen, promoters and politicians, it would make a wonderful difference in the well-being of business and private life and the body-politic. How about a campaign to cut off red meat from these groups and provide whatever pills and potions are necessary, at public expense? Such a calming campaign is especially necessary just now. If the high-pressure boys can't be made to ease up somehow, Uncle Sam himself will be developing a cerebral thrombosis or something.

VAIN TREASURE HUNT.

One more treasure hunt comes to an inglorious end. Treasure Recovery, Ltd., a British expedition, has definitely abandoned its effort to discover the Cocos Island treasure. Its concession for hunting that supposed cache would have expired in April. The hunt is abandoned earlier, however, because of the disappearance at Jamaica of the mysterious Belgian who claimed to have found the treasure when shipwrecked on Cocos Island in 1929. He had contracted to reveal its whereabouts in exchange for an interest in anything discovered. Efforts to locate him since his disappearance have been fruitless, so the expedition is returning to England.

Successful recovery of buried treasure, particularly in modern times, seems to be confined to fiction.

COLITIS

Just why some individuals are attacked by hay fever, asthma, or eczema but the vast majority escapes these ailments, was a mystery until recently. An investigation showed that asthma, hay fever and eczema seemed to run in families and further investigation showed that this was due to the fact that the tissues of these individuals were "sensitive" to certain foods and other substances—fur, feathers, hair, pollen from plants.

Thus when ragweed pollen is in the air in the districts in which they live, they will suffer with hay fever; if they eat eggs, they may have asthmatic attacks, and eczema may result from eating such nutritious foods as tomatoes, bread, salt meat or fish.

In addition to these three ailments some individuals may have stomach upsets from eating certain foods. These upsets may be in the form of "bilious attacks."

This being sensitive to certain substances is now so well established in medicine that it has a name of its own—allergy, and the individual is described as being allergic. About 25 percent of adults have some form of allergy.

Recently another ailment—colitis—has been thought to be due to allergy. Colitis is an inflammation of the colon or lower bowel with diarrhoea and pain low down in the abdomen.

Many cases of colitis are due to certain definite organisms, but where no special organisms or other causes are found, it is believed that this sensitiveness to substances — being allergic—may be the cause.

Dr. Dorothy C. Hare in the Lancet, London, states that she studied 38 cases of colitis not due to special organisms. Information was sought in these cases as to the occurrence of the allergic disorders of asthma, hay fever, head colds, migraine—one-sided headache, bilious attacks, hives, eczema and epilepsy. Also if foods had affected these individuals during childhood or since.

It was found that while about 25 per cent of all adults are allergic, 85 per cent (32 of the 38) of these colitis patients gave a personal or family history of allergy.

Thus it may be that many cases of colitis, where the cause is unknown, are due to the sensitiveness of these individuals to certain foods and other substances.

Golden Rain

by Margaret Widdemer

SYNOPSIS: Through Morgan Black, boarder in her Aunt Ella's decaying old mansion, Iris Lorning has found her brother Owen and her Aunt Phina. Iris believed her brother dead. But in her happiness at seeing that Owen is a fine chap, and that her Aunt Phina is the best known couturière in America, Iris resents a little Morgan's attitude. He seems to fear that Iris will be removed from her simple and appropriate setting, and placed in artificial surroundings less suitable. Aunt Phina is offering Iris a luxurious home in New York.

Chapter 14.

STRONG WORDS

"YOU would spend your winters with us in our Park Avenue apartment, and the summers either on Long Island or traveling," Phina went on. "I can give you everything you should have, and I will. With me, you should make the sort of marriage that is right for you."

Owen's words had almost made her say an eager yes; but Phina's were so detached and cool that something in her shivered away for a moment. The orchestra was playing a tripping dance of Dalibes'; the chatter of groups around them, the hurry of waiters, went on. After all, to go away from people who were fond of her . . . Phina didn't say anything about love.

"Do you want me—because you—like me?" Iris said, stumbling a little.

Phina smiled.

"You foolish child, who wouldn't?"

"It's wonderful—it's like a fairy-tale," she said. "But I can't say yes this minute. May I tell you tomorrow?"

"Of course you may," Phina said. But her air said that it was settled. "I have to telephone New York now," she added. "Wait for me in the lobby, when you finish."

"She keeps the shop tied to a telephone wire," said Owen. "Never a detail gets out from under Phina's hand."

"She's wonderful—and isn't she generous!"

Owen did not answer for a moment. Then with a visible effort, he began to talk.

"She is wonderful. And she is generous. But she never gives without some prospect of return. I'm being disloyal to her, but you're my own sister. I want you because you're young and kind and human and belong to me. Phina has some reason, I'm afraid, beyond all that—it may be merely to pay off Aunt Ella, whom she has never forgiven and never will. Come, anyhow, Iris, I need you like the devil! But don't take Phina for a romantic or you'll be disappointed."

"Why," said Iris, wide-eyed, "if there's something I could do for her to pay her back, I'd feel better about going! It's such a lot to take!"

Owen said no more.

WHEN she returned home she ran upstairs, happy, excited, to show herself.

"Isn't my hair nice this way? The rings are kept in shape with brilliantine so they can't come out! I don't look like a whisk-broom! And see my shoes—and my nails!" She showed the pointed pink-tipped fingers, the smart suède shoes and gloves, the dusky hair thinned and shaped and polished, outlining her living, lovely young head.

"Nothing anybody could do to it would make you anything but pretty," said Uncle William. "I suppose that's the way girls should look now."

"She's been taking you up into an exceedingly high mountain," Morgan said bitterly from the little table by the window where he had been at work.

It was too much, on top of this radiant, wonderful day! "It's not your affair as far as I can see," Iris told him with more of anger than she had shown since their first days together.

Before he could answer there was a rap on the half-open bedroom door.

"May we come in?" said Aunt Phina's cool loud voice.

Uncle Will sat up, a light on his face that transformed him for the moment into a young man.

"Josie, my dear!" He held his hands out.

There was no answering light on the face of the tall woman who came toward him. She smiled brightly, mechanically, as something told Iris he had been doing for years.

"I'm sorry to see you so ill," she said conventionally.

He stared up eagerly at the artificially smooth face, the set smile. "Do you know, my dear, you look no older now than you did then? I suppose"—his thin sensitive face flushed as she took his hand—"I look an old man to you."

"You look as if you'd had a hard life. Not greatly changed otherwise. . . . I came to talk to you about Iris."

"Is Iris all you have to talk to me about, after all these years, Colleen?"

It had been a love-name. Iris, standing at the door with her brother and Morgan, knew that, and felt as if she were eavesdropping.

But Uncle Will had forgotten everything but the fact that after twenty years he was seeing a woman he had—Iris knew it now—never, in his gentle, romantic way stopped loving.

Josephine Ross's face broke up suddenly into convulsed lines. The smooth massaged youthfulness went; in its place came a haggard youth— she was like a ravaged girl. Her blunt-fingered capable hands wrenched themselves. Then she stiffened, steadied. She too had forgotten her young people at the door.

Iris turned, self-conscious for those who were not self-conscious for themselves, and found that Owen and Morgan had gone. There was a small room at the stairhead, glassed in: half conservatory, half sewing room. She leaned her head back. Yes. They were there, with the doors closed; talking pleasantly enough, it seemed. That was all to the good anyway. . . .

"And you can reproach me now!" Josephine was saying, furiously, standing over the bed where Uncle Will lay, propped with pillows, his thin cheeks flushed, his hands playing nervously with the edges of his gray dressing-gown. "You, that treated me as you did! You, that let your sister treat Jean and me the way she did!"

"I wanted to marry you, Josie," he said. "I loved you. I've never loved anybody else."

"And what good did that do? What did you do to prove it?" she demanded. "You asked me to marry you—you that were twice my age, with twice my knowledge of life. But we had to wait because your brother Lawrence was a genius, save the mark."

"And so my fine genius comes with you to the little house where Jean and I were working; young girls who asked nothing but to earn a living and be let alone, and the first I know he, that you had to help support because he was a genius—a genius when he'd done nothing to show it at forty, walks off with my little sister to Philadelphia and marries her.

"He didn't stop for thoughts of duty. No, with all his good looks and his selfish charm and his clever talk and his grand ways, he sweeps off little Jean who would always believe anything she was told, and love anybody for a kind word, the poor little pretty thing. And still you persuaded me to wait, and still I waited.

"You were too well-bred and proper to marry me and let me go on working, and there wasn't the money to support Lawrence and Jean and for your marrying too. You loved me, but your duty to everybody on God's earth came before me—or your sister Ella and your brother Lawrence had you so cowed and hypnotized that you thought so."

Her voice had risen; it swept on like a flood. She came closer, and stood above the bed with clenched hands. "I even went to Philadelphia to work, so that your poverty-stricken fine family wouldn't be shamed by a well-brought-up girl earning an honest living—young affectionate fool I was!"

"Josie, Josie, if you had only explained some of this to me, long ago!"

"Explained it to you! Didn't I say it and scream it for five years? But what could two girls do against three middle-aged people who were all set one way, and two of them selfish? For I'll say for you, Billy, you were never selfish for yourself, only for Lawrence."

He held out a thin hand. She pushed it away.

"Never mind." She had gone back to her hard, smooth, English-accented voice. "We're through with all that, you and I, and I suppose I should thank you, it was the hate of you and your sister Ella that drove me along. To where I've got. To where I'll be. . . ."

She caught her breath.

He sat up in bed and caught her hands. "Josie, Josie, I'm sorry. We were selfish—we were cruel. But—"

She laughed suddenly, harshly, jerking her hands away.

She seemed about to come closer to him, when Aunt Ella, carrying the five o'clock tray of tea brushed past the rapt Iris, and then stood suddenly still.

STATE INCOME TAX

By MARK GRAVES
(Commissioner of Taxation and Finance)

Article 8—Personal Exemption

Personal exemptions under New York State's income tax, which is due on or before April 15, are the same as those in force during 1934 collection period.

Married persons, living with husband or wife or the head of a family, are allowed $2,500. A single person, or a married person not living with husband or wife is allowed $1,000. The statutory allowance for dependents, other than husband or wife, continues at $400.

Thus John Smith, an unmarried man, deducts $1,000 from his gross income in computing his net taxable income. Tom Brown, a married man, living with his wife and one child, deducts $2,500 as personal exemption and $400 for the one child.

Only persons, under 18 years of age, or those physically or mentally incapable of self-support, are considered dependents in the eyes of the law.

If a dependent receives support from more than one taxpayer, exemption may be claimed only by the person who is the chief support, that is, contributes more than half of the total.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Politicians here regard the selection of John Hamilton as national organizer for the volunteer committee working for the nomination of Governor Landon as a definite step toward lining up uninstructed delegates in the east for the Kansas executive.

The tall, sandy-haired and youthful former executive assistant to Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, is closely allied with the eastern conservative wing of the party. It is generally conceded that it was largely through the influence of Charles D. Hilles of New York that Hamilton was named general counsel for the national committee.

Within a few hours after Hamilton had resigned as Fletcher's executive assistant he left on an unannounced trip to key cities in the east to confer with Republican leaders.

Satisfying Old Desire

HAMILTON interested himself in Landon's candidacy months ago. Named by the Kansas governor to serve as national committee man after the death of David Mulvane, he repeatedly expressed a desire to sever connection with national headquarters here and get out and work for Landon.

Last November and again in January he made known his wishes, but each time Hilles and other eastern conservatives persuaded him to remain. Their chief argument was that he was needed at headquarters because of his ability to compose differences between party factions, but the actual reason was the eastern conservatives had not at that time made up their minds about Landon as a nominee.

Selection of Hamilton fits in with the strategy of the Landon forces to obtain the nomination. They do not want delegates from the east to go to Cleveland instructed for him. Rather they would have Landon go into the convention with just the support of his home folk.

Unless he decides to change his tactics, Landon's friends say he will make no personal appearance in the east prior to the convention. It will be up to Hamilton to sell the east on the idea that Landon is the man to support.

A Washington Headquarters

HE plans to set up headquarters in Washington and direct his campaign for Landon from here.

The familiar saying that politics makes strange bed fellows is borne out in the case of Landon and Hamilton. Eight years ago Alf Landon was campaign manager for Clyde Reed who defeated Hamilton for the Republican nomination for governor of Kansas. Today Hamilton is staking all on securing political preferment for Landon.

Hamilton, who earned his place in national politics before Landon was heard of outside of Kansas, first attracted attention by his attempts to organize the "youth" movement in the Republican party. Although in good standing with eastern conservatives, he has been a leader in the midwestern drive to liberalize the Republican party.

Color Blindness Traced to Variety of Causes

Color blindness, also called achromatopsy and daltonism, is the inability to distinguish certain colors or shades of color. Total color blindness, in which there is no perception of colors as such, but only of gradations of light and shade, is rare. The most common form, states a writer in the Indianapolis News, is that in which some bright colors, different in different cases, are confused with each other, though other colors are correctly perceived. Color blindness may be congenital (i. e., present from birth) or acquired. It is said frequently to be transmitted from grandfather to grandson, and is more common in males than in females, in the proportion of over three to one.

Acquired color blindness may be caused by a diseased brain or by a diseased or wounded optic nerve; but it appears to be unconnected with defects of sight and with retinal diseases generally. It is sometimes temporary, but even in such cases is usually recurrent in increasing acute forms. The average eye distinguishes six spectral colors; an acute sense of color distinguishes seven.

Color blindness, affecting one eye or both, has no known remedy. It must, however, be distinguished from mere ignorance of color names. A case of color blindness was mentioned in 1684, and others were noted in 1777 and 1779; but the most famous early instance—from which the defect was known as daltonism—was that of the English chemist, John Dalton, who in 1794, described his own case. Investigations during the Nineteenth century established the importance of color blindness, especially in the mercantile marine and railway service; and tests were devised for applicants for such positions.

Homer's Troy Seventh on Same Site to Be Ruined

Homer's Troy which the Greeks burned in 1183 B. C., after smuggling some of their men inside the city in a wooden horse, was really the seventh city to be destroyed on the same site, according to calculations made by University of Cincinnati archeologists.

There were altogether nine Troys which flourished over a period of 3,200 years, archeologists have declared.

The first was a crude settlement made at the crossroads of the ancient world in the days when mankind first began domesticating animals and crops. The last city perished with the collapse of the Roman empire.

Ruins of the seventh city show it was destroyed by fire. The sixth city, which was formerly believed to be the one described in Homer's great epic, "The Iliad," was probably destroyed by an earthquake.

Memorial to C. Columbus

No man, probably has as many memorials erected to his memory in the western hemisphere as has Christopher Columbus. But the distinction of being the first country to honor the discoverer of America by a statue goes to Mexico, states a writer in the Philadelphia Record. In the middle of the beautiful Paseo de la Reforma, the tree-lined boulevard in Mexico City which extends two miles to the Hill of Chapultepec, stands the first statue to Columbus. The statue represents Columbus drawing aside the veil that hid the New World. Around its base are figures of famous Mexicans and Spaniards, one of whom is the distinguished Spanish Dominican friar, Bartolome de las Casas, who defended the Mexican Indians against their cruel conquerors.

Use of Yeast

Yeast is such an essential constituent of bread that it is difficult to realize that it is a comparative innovation—that men ate wheaten loaves for thousands of generations before anybody thought about it. The use of yeast was one of the trade secrets of Paris bakers about 200 years ago. The bread shortage explains. There was a big scandal when the secret leaked out. The bakers were accused of poisoning the public. The College of Physicians of Paris went on record opposing yeast-leavened bread on the grounds that it was not wholesome.

TALKS TO PARENTS

The Runaway

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Until he was nearly six, Sam played contentedly in his own yard. He was not permitted to go visiting or onto the street without a grown up, and was even personally conducted to and from school. This custom was hardly necessary because the school was only two blocks away.

Then one day he suddenly began to make independent excursions. His mother had to be on the watch every minute to see that he did not slip out of the gate and away, to be found later walking along Main street or perhaps calling at the home of a neighbor.

Sam was tired of being babied. He wanted and needed more freedom of action. His mother probably would have had less trouble and anxiety had she permitted him to go to and from school alone. The daily adventure would have satisfied much of his craving for some degree of independence.

When a child takes to wandering in this way, it is often a good plan to loosen the leading strings. If he has not already been taught to take care of himself in dealing with crowds and traffic and finding his way about, it is high time that the lessons began.

As soon as he knows the rules and seems reasonably informed about directions, he should be sent out on trial flights—perhaps to the grocer on the corner for a loaf of bread, or to the mailbox, two blocks down to post a letter. The sooner he is permitted to go to and from school, the better. There is generally a policeman at every corner during the crowded hours, so there is very little cause for worry.

After all, if the child is determined to go out alone, it is better to know where he is going and that he can take care of himself, than to be on guard every minute and still have him escape into the unknown.

Sundown Stories

The Graduation

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BROWN SPECK was sitting on a pond lily leaf and old Professor Big Wings was sitting on an old stump in the Quackerville pond. Mrs. Quacker was as proud of her grandson as she could be. It was time for him to be graduated.

"Brown Speck," said Old Professor Big Wings, "I want to give you this piece of paper on which, in my best webbed printing, is engraved the fact that you have been graduated from my class."

Brown Speck took the piece of paper which was made out of a thin piece of bark and bowed before Professor Big Wings. Then the Professor offered a foot to shake.

As they did this they both toppled over into the pond, but they proved to be excellent swimmers.

"Ah, quack, quack," quacked Mrs. Quacker, "I always say that I want my grandchildren to be good at sports as well as at studies. See how Brown Speck can swim!"

After this all the ducks had refreshments.

But Brown Speck became the center of a fight. He wanted to show he knew all about bugs by eating as many as he could and then telling everyone what kind they were.

"Can't you tell without eating, Brown Speck?"

"No, no," he said, "one who has studied bugs as I have, knows that one cannot be certain unless one has proved the problem."

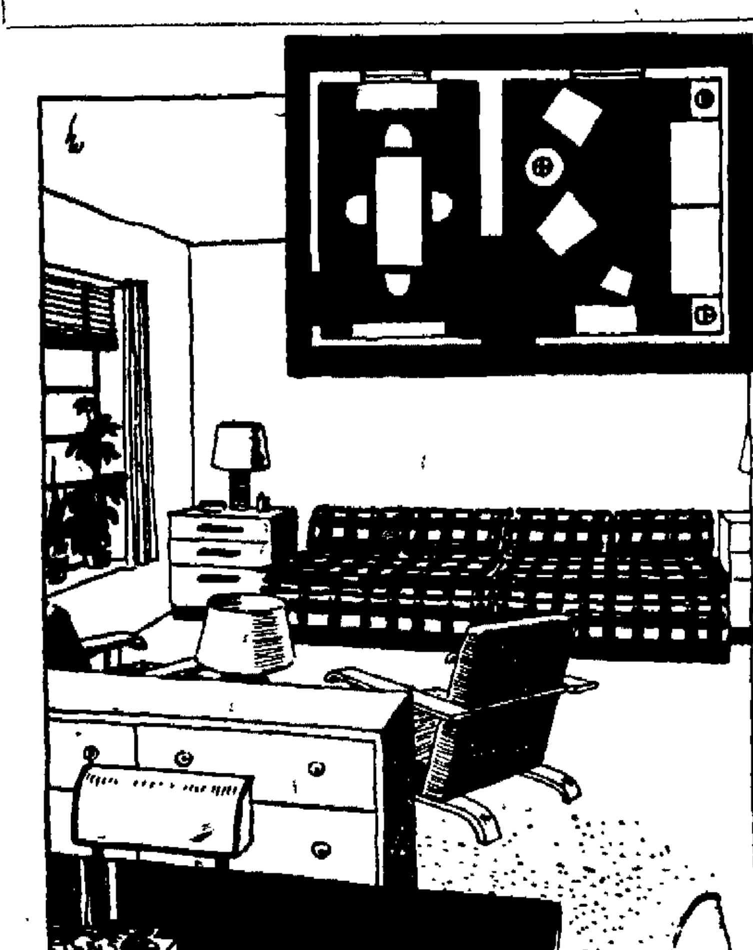

"A lot of talk," quacked the Pride ducks, "to get away with a lot of eating."

And Mrs. Quacker, who overheard this, thought that really Mrs. Quacker had wanted Brown Speck's name in having him so educated. He had merely learned how to be greedy.

Fashions and Household Hints for Women

Modern Furniture, Well Arranged, Can Make One Room a Real Home

Here's a plan for a livable one-room home.

By MARGERY TAYLOR.

Copyright, 1936, by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman.

For those thousands to whom home is a single room, decoration is a fascinating and exciting problem. But until the daring, ingenious modern designers came along, one-room dwellers didn't get much help.

Now two people can create charming and comfortable surroundings, in reasonable harmony with their tastes, with $150 to $500 and the help of the modernists.

Especially helpful is their clever way of making a piece of furniture so that it will serve more than one purpose. There is the sofa which becomes a double bed at the touch of a button. There is the console table, only 12 inches, which, by the aid of drop leaves or sliding sections, becomes a dining table 50 x 72 inches. Chests are magically transformed into writing desks and electric serving tables.

But if you are old-fashioned enough to prefer furniture with only one purpose, it is possible to have all the comforts of home if the room is not too small.

One pleasant example—a room about 16 x 24—is divided into two parts by a bookcase 3 feet high, standing out from one wall. A third of the room thus becomes a dining room — unashamed — with dining table and china cupboard. Off it is a serving kitchenette with refrigerator, electric hot plate, casserole and all the other cook's gadgetry—in a 3 x 5 space.

The rest of the room is a living room-bedroom. Two studio couches stand head on against one wall, a pair of chests fit neatly in the corners at each end. A white painted secretary desk, with ample storage space, is against a side wall; and in the corner near the bookcase is a comportable group of two chairs, a table and a lamp.

Flowers Blossom On Gowns As Paris Welcomes Spring

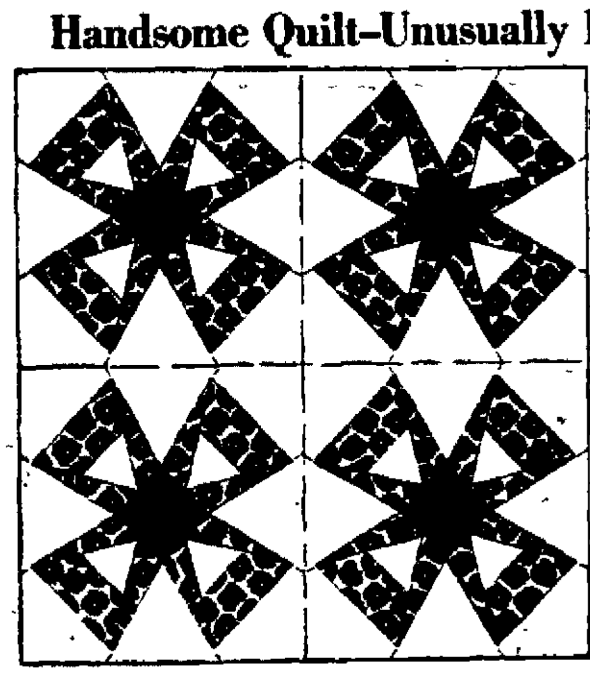

Flowers accent many of the new spring Paris costumes. The decollete of this dusty pink crepe evening gown is rimmed with roses made of the same material as the frock. The front skirt drapery and the long cutaway cape madé of the same material give a somewhat sculptured effect to the ensemble, which is designed by Robert Piguet.

Storm Windows.

Now that it is almost time to take down storm windows and put them away for the summer, it would be well to consider having them rebuilt so that there will be a panel at the bottom that can be opened for ventilation purposes. Either one or two panels of glass may be made to swing, or, if the bottom rail of the sash is wide enough, a slot can be cut in it with either a slide shutter on the inside or one that will pivot at one end on a nail and may be lifted when ventilation is desired. If the glass panel is decided upon, it should be hinged at the top to swing out, and some form of hook used so that it may be fastened in the open position.

SHADE THAT BEDROOM LIGHT WITH "HANKY"

If you wish to shade the bright light that hangs down from the ceiling in the bedroom why not drape a pretty colored handkerchief over the light? A fringed "hanky" looks particularly pretty. If the shade is low enough for you to reach you can lift back the shade any time you want the very bright light for dressing.

MIDDLETOWN TO ADD SIX POLICEMEN; LAW DENOUNCED

Denouncing the state's new three-platoon police law as an example of what organized minorities can accomplish against the interest of taxpayers, Mayor Charles C. Chappell today approved, with extreme reluctance, the local law for increase of Middletown's police personnel from twenty-two to twenty-eight men. Increase was made necessary to permit compliance to the three-platoon law.

SMALL BACK YARD CAN BE MADE COZY AND ATTRACTIVE

How should the grounds be treated? Should the front or rear yard be developed?

The development of the yards must be considered separately in each individual case. More and more America is turning to the European idea of privacy in outdoor living areas. The front porch with its row of rocking chairs and their turkey red antimacassas is almost a thing of the past. The noise and dust of the automobile has driven us to the back of the house; and besides they go by so quickly that we cannot tell who is in them, so our curiosity would get little exercise if we sat out in front to watch the world go by.

If the back yard lends itself to development, that is where the living area should be. For this reason the garage is better alongside the house, either built as part of it or connected by a covered passage. Not only does this give us more room in the back, but it shortens the driveway and removes an ugly feature from our garden area. Having selected the best place to develop, a study should be made of its possibilities.

A small flower garden should be included in any scheme, and the matter of shade and view should be considered. By view is not necessarily meant a long vista, an interesting angle of the house, a graceful clump of trees or shrubs, a corner with a pool are just as much to be taken advantage of as a distant view of the hills or ocean. A high hedge or even a wall often is a great addition to these intimate views, and contributes considerably to privacy.

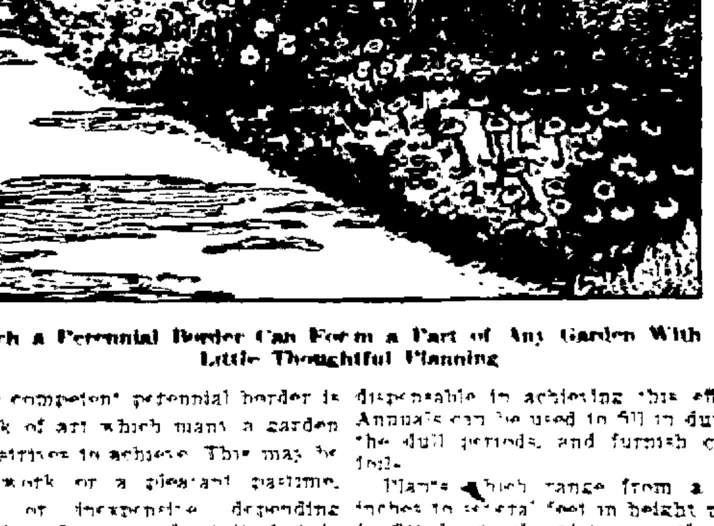

The grounds and house should be considered as one, and each should supplement the other. By tying it to living areas of the house and surrounding it with some form of protective screen, a small back yard can be made as attractive and cozy as a room of the house.

Novelties add new interest to an old garden. Get a few of the new annuals, and some of the new vegetable varieties.

Annuals may be started in a cold frame to good advantage but this will require later sowing when the temperature has reached a point where it will not freeze the earth in the frame. The most effective use of annuals is in borders of various combinations of color such as blue and pink, mauve and rose, orange and yellow, scarlet and orange and other color schemes.

A friend with an emphatic wife suggests that the Minneapolis city electrician, knocked 12 feet when he touched a 2,300-volt cable recently, probably said, "Yes, my dear," when he was able to speak.—Topeka State Journal.

A Perennial Garden from Seed

Such a Perennial Border Can Form a Part of Any Garden With a Little Thoughtful Planning

The competent perennial border is a work of art which many a garden lover strives to achieve. This may be hard work or a pleasant pastime, costly or inexpensive, depending upon how he goes about it, but in any case the job needs much careful study.

Without it the hardy border is likely to be a helter-skelter arrangement with little sequence in height, color or season of bloom.

It is possible to get data on the way flowers grow before beginning operations. It is found for the most part in seed catalogs, and usually a gardening neighbor will have valuable information about local conditions and what will grow best in the community. When the choice of flowers is made, a scale plan on paper should be drawn and each subject located on it according to its height and color.

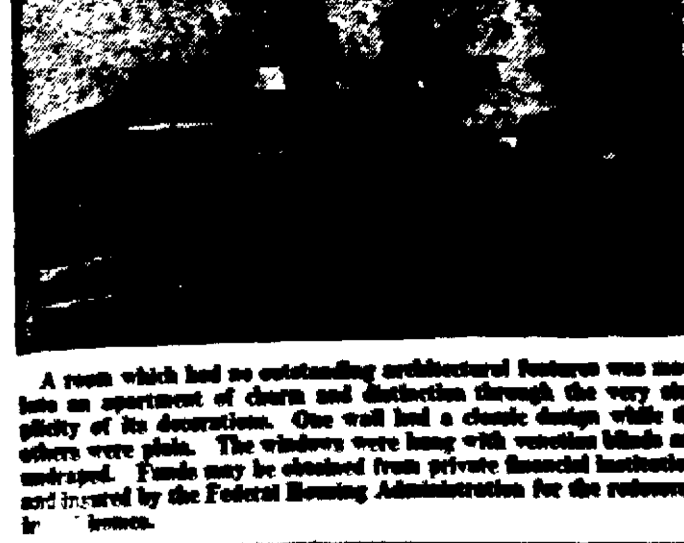

Most perennials have a shorter blooming period than annuals. The real skill in arranging perennials is in assembling combinations that will give a consecutive show through the season without leaving wide bare stretches at any time. Knowledge of the blooming habits of plants is indispensable in achieving this effect. Annuals can be used to fill in during the dull periods, and furnish color foil.

Plants which range from a few inches to several feet in height must be fitted into the picture so that all can be seen to advantage. It is manifestly foolish to plant a tall delphinium in front of some small plant, and the general rule is a gentle graduation from the low-growing types in front to the taller ones in the background, without, however, presenting a monotonous sky-line. There must be an interesting pattern of peaks and valleys against the back ground.

Many perennials can be grown from seed. This is the economical way to do it, as for the cost of a single plant seed for several dozen can be purchased. Sow perennials early. Seed sown in the warm days of spring will make sturdy growth by fall when plants may be transplanted to their permanent quarters.

Sow in a protected part of the garden where there is a little likelihood of disturbance. Be sure to label each row. A moderately rich loam with a good quantity of humus in it is best.

Distinction Through Simplicity

A room which had no outstanding architectural features was made into an apartment of charm and distinction through the very simplicity of its decorations. One wall had a classic design while the others were plain. The windows were hung with venetian blinds and undraped. Funds may be obtained from private financial institutions and insured by the Federal Housing Administration for the refurnishing of homes.

With railroad fares down to two cents a mile, of course we'll all travel and be prosperous, intelligent and happy.

Did you ever stop to think how often you've thought that you'd sit down some day and think things out?

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, March 21.—The basketball championship of Olive and Hurley is at stake, and will be decided at the Ashokan M. E. Church hall on Wednesday evening, March 25, at 8 o'clock, when rival teams, the Ashokan Epworths and their West Hurley brethren will engage in contest. Refreshments will be served following the game and the public is asked to assist graciously toward making this engagement a pronounced social and financial success.

Jerry Van Kleeck and Gilbert Bloom of Tabasco Heights delivered a truck load of firewood to an Ashokan customer Thursday afternoon. Mr. Van Kleeck has just purchased a new Chevrolet truck.

Miss Lydia E. Scott of Bonnie Brae cottage, north boulevard, has purchased a luxurious new Chevrolet master model town sedan from Chester A. Lyons, the Ashokan dealer.

Marshall Bogart of Yonkers, an old customer of Mr. Lyons, also has purchased an identically similar car as the above.

Regardless of the continuing rainy weather there was a very pleasing public response to the Olive Rebekahs' cafeteria supper and card party held Thursday evening at the Olive Bridge I. O. O. F. hall.

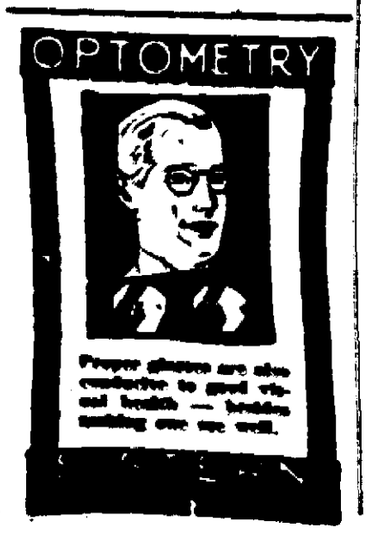

Miss Helen Thompson of Kingston spent Wednesday night at her home here on Main street.

A sizeable delegation from Shokan I. O. O. F. Lodge attended the Bearsville meeting and conferring of their specialized second degree, Friday evening.

The continued spell of flood weather is detrimental to the maple sapping season which was just getting under way as the deluge came along last week.

THE HOME DECORATOR

Bathroom

In almost every home there is one particular room that is decidedly neglected. It is in the same relation to the rest of your house as your last year's hat bears to your new winter coat . . . so dated that it is now beyond the pale. And we'll wager that this particular beauty-starved room is the same in almost every home . . . it's the bathroom every time. It is so easy to just hang the towels on the rack, put the soap in the dish, call it quits and get to work on the new dining room drapes. It is logical that more care be given the rooms which are the most lived in, but the bleak fate of the average bath is a blot on the escutcheon of the average housewife. And attention it is getting, too, as a walk through the house furnishing departments of our larger stores will show you. You will go home wailing for . . . or laden with . . . the wherewithal to do your best for the family orphan.

These days there are such grand things you can do in the way of fixing up the bathroom. The old idea that white and more white is the only thing . . . the only sanitary fitting thing . . . for the bath is a tale of the past. Color makes the modern bath. Not too dark a major color since you will want good light reflection values. Here beards are shaved, faces are powdered and there must be light and plenty of it to avoid butchered chins or floury noses.

For example, get some gray paint . . . there are shades and shades of it, each more striking and appealing than the last . . . but be careful, get a warm soft gray with plenty of depth. Your paint dealer will help you gladly in your choice. Picture the walls of soft gray paint; dark, iron gray linoleum on the floor lined off with a thin dark red stripe; your ceilings matching the walls; the ever important fixtures a dark red . . . and this can easily be managed with your own two hands by the means of a reliable lacquer or enamel; your towels monogramed in dark red . . . this last needn't be an expensive item either—plain white towelling is not expensive and the monograming can be done at home; and the last touch—an oiled silk shower curtain with streaks and splashes of your same red patterning it off.

There you are. A room as invigorating as your morning shower and as cheerful as a day in June.

The painting job isn't a wearisome task by any means. You can have your painter do it, or do it yourself. It takes care . . . not inborn talent. Begin at the top. Scrub the old surfaces "clean as a whistle" and rinse off all soapy film. Scrape off loose scales of old paint and fill the cracks or holes with patching plaster. Let it dry; put on a coat of wall-primer, dip your brush into a can of semi-lustre (incidentally, it's inexpensive and durable) and proceed to a smooth, satiny, tight finish that washes almost as easily as a China plate. Simple as your A B C's.

Truly, providing a lovely, colorful bathroom in faultless finish is one of the nicest compliments you can pay a guest in your home and it will be a source of constant satisfaction to you and your family.

CATHOLIC EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION APRIL 14

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., author and regent of the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University in Washington, D. C., will be one of the principal speakers at the banquet of the National Catholic Educational Association convention on April 14 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, it was announced Friday, March 20, by the Rev. William R. Kelly, chairman of this year's convention committee of the organization and executive secretary of the Catholic School Board of the Archdiocese of New York.

Father Walsh has a wide reputation as a critic of Communism and on several occasions has represented the Vatican on missions to the Soviet Republics.

His Eminence, Cardinal Hayes, will preside at the banquet. Many outstanding ecclesiastical, civic leaders and school superintendents from throughout the country are expected to attend.

PASSION PLAY CAST WITHOUT A CHRISTUS

Bayard, Neb. (AP)—A passion play without a Christus will have its eighth annual production here next June.

Because the figure of Christ does not appear in the drama, the Rev. Louis H. Kaub of Lexington, Neb., the author and director, insists that technically it is not a passion play.

"The play is of such a quiet, deeply worshipful nature Christ seems always present," he says. "Though unseen, He is present to play His own part."

Church Supper

There will be a cafeteria supper in the Stone Ridge Reformed Church on Tuesday evening, March 24, beginning at 5:30 o'clock.

King Edward has made a grand start, and will get along all right as long as nobody persuades him to grow a Georgian beard or a Hitler smudge.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

There will be at least one suit in every woman's wardrobe this spring, according to all predictions. And where there are suits there must be neckwear, for a touch of white at the throat is fashion's latest whim.

If one would be "Gibson girlish" the frilly, fluffy types of neckwear may be worn—and for the more mannish models the tailored pieces will be smart. Broad shoulders, fitted coats with wasp like waists form the new silhouette that calls for a frill or two at the neckline. Some use gilets or waistcoats that take the place of a blouse—others wear a blouse with neckwear for added fillip.

The very feminine model of fluted Chantilly lace shown above reveals the new Margot neckline—high and full with black cire ribbon bow. This typical suit frill falls in a double cascade and has cuffs to match.

Following the mannish trend, an Ascot of white pique in jockey club style is sketched above. A softening touch is added however, by the miniature boutonniere of flowers and the braid and cut-work trim.

ETIQUETTE OF INTRODUCTION

LEARN TO INTRODUCE PEOPLE SMOOTHLY

Introducing people—it's so simple, we all know how, yet how few do it gracefully!

Too often we hear awkward blunders: "I'd like to make you acquainted with Jim Jones," or "Meet an old friend of mine, Mrs. Harrison," or the cart-before-the-horse, "Let me present Mrs. Smith to you, Mr. Wallace." Then there are the various errors in replies: the inexcusable "Pleased to meet you," the stilted "Charmed to make your acquaintance" the brusk "How are ya?" or "Glad to know you," rattled off in monotone.

Let's hear how smooth Margot introduces two of her friends.

"Miss Stevens, this is Mr. Archer," she says correctly presenting the young man to the young woman, and naming the young woman first. If it were a distinguished man, or an elderly person, she would present young Miss Stevens to him, naming him first.

Miss Stevens and Mr. Archer do not, above all, say "Pleased to meet you." Both say "How do you do?" That is enough, though it is perfectly correct to repeat the name, saying "How do you do, Mr. Archer." Indeed, if you have not quite caught the name, it is only courteous to ask to have it repeated, so that you will not embarrass people my saying their names wrong in talking to them.

If the hostess expects her guests to chat for a bit, she will be doing the tactful thing if she adds, "Miss Stevens this is the friend of my brother Hal, who is such a tennis fan," or "Mr. Archer, Miss Stevens is also a music-lover." Thus the new acquaintances get off to a good start.

Do you envy people who are smooth, always at ease, ready with the right word? It's not hard, really. It is just a matter of feeling sure of yourself, of the rules of etiquette

Get our 40-page Home Institute booklet, Etiquette For Every Day, and master these rules. Learn the right form at table, in public places, at the theatre, wherever critical eyes are on you.

FREEMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS!

On The Radio Day By Day

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

Time is Eastern Standard

New York, March 21 (AP)—Network radio, which must depend on interconnecting wires to hook its stations together, has been going right ahead with its schedules despite the wide flood area which the broadcast lines traverse. For the most part there have been only spasmodic interruptions, mostly of a minor character. Otherwise, the chains had reports of only two network units under a handicap. Both were at Pittsburgh, KDKA of NBC and WJAS of CBS. They had to resort to batteries under emergency schedule owing to electric failure in their city. Broadcasts from the flood area have been continued, with the latest concentration upon cooperation with the Red Cross in its appeal for flood relief funds. WEAF-NBC presented one with Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Red Cross chairman, while CBS had another under the direction of Kate Smith.

Although today's opera broadcast is the last of the New York season, NBC has completed arrangements to carry an additional matinee by the Metropolitan cast next Saturday. At that time the production, "Carmen," will originate from Boston, where the company will be playing.

ATTRACTIONS PREVIEWED

Today

Broadway: "Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Another step toward the use of color as a screen commonplace is achieved in this famous story that centers around the small, warped and simple minded lives of a group of southern mountaineer people. The glaring hatreds, the generation on generation fueds between these mountain clans is well displayed in all its bigoted brutality. A love story centers around one of the mountain girls and her love for a young engineer from the city. However, the basic power of the production lies in its color. Filmed outdoors, the addition of the Technicolor process has done much to raise the film above the ordinary and audiences will note how far the film industry has come in putting color on film. The cast offers Sylvia Sidney, Fred MacMurray, Henry Fonda, Fred Stone, Nigel Bruce, Robert Barrat, Spanky MacFarland and Richard Carle. Produced by Walter Wanger and directed by Henry Hathaway.

Kingston: "The Lady Consents." Ann Harding, who has done more than her share of suffering in her recent film roles, is given a release from this type of thing in her new picture that gives the classic star greater opportunity to prove her worth as an artist with comedy requisites. Against the background of high society, the story tells of a girl who falls madly in love with a handsome doctor, forgetting the perhaps unimportant item that the doctor was married and in love with his wife. The dialogue is well done in this show and the cast is exceptionally well chosen. The work of Miss Harding is a standout part of the show but she is pressed for honors by both Herbert Marshall and Margaret Lindsay. Walter Abel, Hobart Cavanaugh and Edward Ellis are featured. A special attraction at the Saturday evening performance is the stage attraction "Winners on Parade." This presentation offers a group of amateur radio winners in songs, dances and comedy moments.

Orpheum: "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" and "Gun Play." Somewhat venerable with age, the first picture stars the talented Ronald Colman in the role of a Russian outcast who goes to Monte Carlo and breaks the bank. The casino officials set a beautiful woman on his trail in order to lure him back to the gambling rooms and the girl falls in love with him during her efforts to trap him. Joan Bennett is in the cast. "Gun Play" offers Big Boy Williams in an out of doors drama that lacks nothing in thrills and violence.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.
Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: "Two Tough To Kill." As the title suggests, this is the virile tale of a tough, hardrock man who not only tosses a mean fist into the midsection of his enemies but who is also tough to get when the ladies start falling for him. The play is pretty exciting stuff, filled as it is with fisticuffs and violent action. Victor Jory heads the cast along with Sally O'Neil. Selected short subjects complete the Sunday program.

HUMMING BIRD "AT HOME" AFTER RESCUE IN STORM

Brownsville, Tex. (AP) — Cold weather descended upon the lower Rio Grande valley this winter and brought "Dippy," a humming bird, a waif of the storm.

Picked up half numb by a member of the Grover Singer household here, "Dippy" took up an abode on a curtain rod, starved out a spider in a duel for stray insects, and now, when called, will fan its wings toward any member of the home and take a perch upon a finger.

FEATHERED FLOOD VICTIMS

Santa Rosa, Calif. (AP)—Albert Eckert made a two-hour drive in his car to get surgical aid for a leg fractured in two places.

VETERAN MERCHANTS CALM IN FLOOD

The "Beautiful Ohio" turned into a turgid flood of mud as it covered the streets of Marietta, O., but merchants were unperturbed. Having lived through many floods they calmly moved their stock themselves stairs and sat down to wait out the flood. Here is Main street. (Associated Press Photo)

PITTSBURGH DEEP IN TROUBLE

William Singer Files Bankruptcy

New York, March 20 (Special)—William Singer of 35 West Fiemont street, Kingston, who has been in business at 62 East Strand where he ran a gas station under the name Singer Service Station, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States District Court here today. He lists liabilities, all unsecured, of $5,091 and assets of $175.

The principal creditor is Mrs. Annette Miller of Atlanta, Ga., with claims totaling $1,202.

POLICE CHIEF'S CRUSADE COSTS HIMELF $1 FINE

St. Joseph's Mo. (AP)—"But I parked only 35 minutes," said Mrs. Charles A. Enos to her husband, the chief-of-police who had just started a crusade against overparking.

"The law says only 30 minutes," replied the brave officer, digging into his pocket for the $1 overtime fine.

Stork in Hasty Mood

Birmingham, Ala. — The stork made three visits within an hour to an ambulance here. A girl was born to Mrs. Almettia Brewster while she was en route to a hospital, and in less than an hour twins were born under the same circumstances to Mrs. Velma Shirly. All concerned are doing well.

Another Expert

St. Louis, Mo. Judge James Sullivan asked if the practice wasn't dangerous after fining James Sullivan for driving 35 miles an hour with one arm around a girl. "Oh, no," replied Sullivan, "I've had plenty of experience at it."

Real Dog Lover

Memphis, Tenn. L. T. Holback offered to go to jail if officers who picked up his dog because she had no license tag would agree to let the dog return to her six puppies. Arraigned in city court, Holback agreed to purchase a tag promptly and was dismissed.

In the calendar year 1934 there were 3,728 accidents at highway grade crossings, which resulted in the death of 1,554 persons and the injury of 4,570.

U. S. Health Experts Now Laboring to Avert Any Epidemic

Washington, March 21. (AP).—Warning that the menace of possible pestilence is "exceedingly grave," the United States Public Health service today kept its most skillful experts laboring to avert any epidemic in flood areas.

Every sanitary engineer at headquarters here had been rushed to Pennsylvania and West Virginia to set up emergency chlorination systems where flood waters have reached the public water supply.

It was Dr. William F. Draper, acting surgeon general, who pronounced the situation "exceedingly grave" after checking late reports from some of the worst-hit areas.

Health officers said the chief danger was from typhoid fever, diarrhea and dysentery. Pointing out that it takes about 14 days for typhoid to develop, they said the disease could be making headway without being suspected.

Officials said that broadly speaking conditions looked worse in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

In flooded areas where chlorination is not being practiced, the health service urged residents to boil all water and allow it to stand for 30 minutes before drinking.

Other government agencies worked apace to relieve distress, rehabilitate battered cities and towns of 13 states, and consider appeals for money from flooded sections.

Secretary of Commerce Roper, expressing admiration for the "heroic manner in which those affected are meeting their troubles," at the same time took the view that the vast work of rehabilitation would stimulate economic recovery.

"The loss of life and the suffering are irremediable," he said. "While, in the face of these grave losses, it does seem difficult to see a silver lining, from the business standpoint, there is one.

"The rehabilitation of the devastated regions will require hundreds of millions of expenditures—no one can say how much now. Wrecked buildings must be replaced or repaired. Flooded industrial plants placed in working order. New bridges must be constructed, road and power lines rebuilt or replaced by new structures. New rails and rail beds must be laid."

President Roosevelt again delayed, until today at least, his departure for a Florida vacation. He remained at his desk to direct relief activities.

The Red Cross reported to the President that waters were slowly returning to normal levels except in parts of New England. Admiral Cary T. Grayson urged the public to hasten contributions to the $3,000,000 emergency fund.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, March 21 (AP)—Flood fears today acted as a further stock market depressant.

While scattered specialties succeeded in moving against the trend, many recent industrial favorites backed up for declines of fractions to around 2 points. The close was easy. Transfers approximated 850,000 shares.

J. I. Case displayed isolated strength, getting up about 4 points. Lesser improvement was shown by Fathe, Stone & Webster, General Refractories, Thomson-Starrett, Deere and Minneapolis-Moline plow.

On the losing end were American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Can, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Commercial Alcohol, Schenley, Howe Sound, Anaconda, American Smelting and Curtiss-Wright. The rails and utilities were unchanged to slightly lower.

Bonds were quiet and steady. Commodities were moderately mixed. Principal foreign currencies gave ground in terms of the dollar.

Sound Of Engine Not That Of An Aeroplane

At about midnight Night Jailer Lyman Ellsworth was called at the sheriff's office and informed that an aeroplane apparently searching for a landing field was flying about in the vicinity of the armory on North Manor avenue. Jailer Ellsworth called Bert Giles, night man at the armory, and asked if there was any indication of a plane in distress in that locality. Mr. Giles investigated and reported that there was no sound of a motor or lights of a plane to be seen.

The sound of a high speed motor was very clearly heard at various points in the city by numerous people and again at about 2:30 o'clock the home of Bert Knauth, manager of the Kingston Airport, was notified that a plane was heard circling about. The caller asked whether the local field could not be lighted or marked so that any plane seeking a landing field could be directed there.

Mr. Knauth, who is not only an expert pilot but an expert motor man, dressed and went out to investigate. He heard a motor, operating at very high speed, but from his experience he ascertained that it could not be the motor of a plane as the speed was far too high for any known type of acroplane motor. This morning he called at The Freeman office and stated that in his opinion the noise heard about the upper section of the city was that of an outboard motor or some similar high speed type of motor. The speed of the motor as heard by several people was similar to that of an outboard motor of a motorcycle running at high speed. There are also typed electric light plants which use a similar type of high speed motor.

Mr. Knauth was certain that the noise was not made by a plane in distress or seeking a landing field and after making sure he could be of no assistance he returned to bed.

Even though there had been a plane seeking a landing at the Kingston field it would have been impossible to light the field or signal a plane. The Kingston field is not equipped with landing lights or with flood lights and even local pilots who have used the local field hundreds of times would have difficulty in setting down a plane on the field on a dark night without the guidance of landing lights or floodlights. A stranger not familiar with the local field in all probabilities would crash in an attempt to set a plane down in the dark.

The Kingston Flying Field is operated as a private enterprise, no public funds are provided for night illumination or landing lights. This morning Mr. Knauth paid a visit to the mayor's office and there presented a plan for night illumination by floodlights which might be used in an emergency. He volunteered to construct the lights at a very nominal cost if the city or some other organization or body would be found to provide the necessary funds for this emergency work. If lights were provided it would be possible to use the filed for emergency night landings but under the present conditions which exist the field is of little use for night landings.

Thunder and Rain Mar Miss Spring's Debut

Although Miss Spring when she arrived in Kingston yesterday was greeted with sunny skies and the songs of robins and other song birds, her evening debut was marred by the fall of rain which swept over Kingston to the accompaniment of thunder which caused residents to awaken during the night and look out of their bedroom windows. The rainfall was heavy and continued falling during the early morning hours, but cleared off before noon when the sun began to peep through the banks of clouds, but shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon th esun was again hidden.

The waters of the Rondout creek still remain at nearly flood level in the lower creek. At noon the water was again over the docks along the creek front.

ENGINEER SAYS LOW SPEED LAWS ARE DANGEROUS

Chicago (AP)—More than 94 per cent of Chicago's motorists are breaking the city's speed laws, says the Chicago Motor club—and adds that it's the fault of the laws.

The club bases its statement that only six out of every 100 drivers keep within the posted speed regulations on the basis of a recent traffic survey.

"The posted speed limits are out of step with motoring conditions," says Z. A. Faulkner, club engineer. "The excessively low posted limits have not curbed recklessness and have not reduced the average travel pace."

On the city's south side outer drive Faulkner asserts a limit of 40 miles an hour is too slow. Of all the cars clocked he says only 25 were keeping within that limit and that most of them were a menace to other traffic.

"Those drivers," says Faulkner, "were constantly exposed to a bump in the rear."

Streiz Trial is Begun

New York, March 21 (AP)—Blonde Vera Streiz, her calm unshaken, steeled herself in her prison cell today while her scarcely begun trial for the "single-standard" slaying of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, wealthy German importer, halted for the week-end. Four jurors were selected yesterday in the first day's session to try the 31-year-old university graduate for the slaying of her employer in his fashionable East Side apartment. Then General Sessions Judge Cornelius F. Collins adjourned the case until Monday.

Douglas Fairbanks' matrimonial adventures are rather lame. We liked him better when he was leaping from case to case.

NYA Now Functions In This City Under Three Supervisors

The National Youth Administration Now Has 93 Boys And Girls Between Ages of 16 and 25 Registered—Several Projects Have Been Started in City and County.

The National Youth Administration program has already began to function in Kingston and Ulster county with Clark Leachtenauer, Lincoln Spencer and Miss Katherine Millard as supervisors. The program was placed in operation this week, and Supervisor Leachtenauer stated this morning that to date 93 boys and girls ranging in age from 16 to 25 years from relief families had been enrolled.

The past week has been devoted largely to organization. There are really two projects combined under one head in the program. The first is recreational and the other public service.

Under the recreational project the object is to train youth into leadership and to further the recreational facilities of the city and county.

As soon as weather conditions permit a group will start in at the city parks, laying out soft ball diamonds and other park activities. There is one youth enrolled who is skillful, in turning out nets, and he will devote his time to making nets to be used for the paddle tennis courts to be laid out in the city parks.

Paddle tennis is a new game in Kingston, and several courts will be laid out this spring.

In the county one group has been organized in Glasco where a recreational field will be built.

In East Kingston recreational facilities will be developed and there is a group of youths now being trained at the local Y. M. C. A. to supervise games and recreation.

Under the public service project a group of youths have been placed in the Municipal Auditorium and also at the City Home. These groups, however, come under the recreational project and will be transferred to that project as soon as it is functioning.

Several girls have been placed in the National Re-employment Service office at the city hall, and one will be placed in the Social Service Exchange in the city hall.

A county-wide library project is now being formulated to take care of other young men and women.

The young people in the NYA are employed for 42 hours each month.

Flood Waters Hold Up Shipment of Trout for Ulster County Streams

Henry Swart, field superintendent of the Ulster County Fish and Game Association, received word earlier in the week from the state hatchery at Rome, N. Y., that a shipment of one thousand over legal size brown trout would arrive at Phoenicia for planting in the Esopus creek, from Phoenicia to the Ashokan reservoir on Monday.

This morning word was received from the state hatchery that owing to the flood waters in the Esopus the shipment would be delayed until the flood waters had subsided.

These trout will arrive in one of the tank cars used by the department for the transportation of fish. The tank is mounted on a large automobile truck and the fish are taken directly to the stream and liberated from the truck. The loss sustained by this method is very small and very few if any fish are lost during transportation. Several men are needed to help take the fish from the tank and transfer them to the stream. Anyone caring to help with this work can let the field superintendent know anytime before nine o'clock Monday morning. This is the first shipment of fish or game that will be received this year. The rabbits which will be placed in the covers for restocking should be along soon. This association will receive about one hundred and twenty-five. There will be over seven hundred released in the county.

On Friday night, March 27, the association is holding an open meeting in the Municipal Auditorium. Word has been received from the Conservation Department that a speaker will be present. Following his address several reels of motion pictures will be shown. These pictures have been secured from the United States Department of Agriculture Extension Service and are interesting and educational. This meeting is open to the public and no charge of any kind will be made. The pictures will be shown by Henry Millonig, Jr., who has gained a wide reputation as a movie operator. The pictures will be the full 35 millimeter size.

Mains Case Continued In Supreme Court Here

The $8,500 action brought by Arthur Mains against Katherine Killian and another was continued in Supreme Court Friday. Mr. Mains sues for $3,500 for loss of wages and for medical attention and $5,000 for pain and suffering which he alleges was due to the negligent manner in which the galley was conducted aboard the steamer Red Jacket and also the failure of the lighting system aboard the boat. On October 4, 1934, he alleges he suffered a severe burn when his hands struck a hot oven in the galley as he was removing a rice pudding from the stove. Poor lighting of the galley and sudden failure of the lights he claims was the cause of the accident which later sent him to Buffalo Marine Hospital and later to a clinic in Buffalo for treatment which he testified was given for a cancer growth on his hand where it had been burned.

Mains testified his hand had been normal prior to the accident and never gave him any trouble although it had been broken some 20 years previous when he was a small lad. At the time of the accident, he testified, some member of the crew of the boat also kicked shut a shutter in the galley window so that he could not see inside the small room.

Members of the crew testified that they observed no failure of the lights at the time the accident is alleged to have taken place. Much testimony was given as to the condition which existed in the ship galley at the time and the method of lighting.

Plaintiff's case is in and the defense has sworn several witnesses, including experts. There has been considerable medical testimony offered.

The case will be continued Monday morning at 10 o'clock to which time court adjourned.

Henry Feiger of Buffalo appears for the plaintiff and A. J. Cook and Kenneth Dugan of Rosendale, Dugan and Haines appears for defendants.

White-Valley Tiff Ends.

New York, March 21 (AP)—The dispute between Rudy Vallee and George White, which flared to fisticuffs the other night, was officially today, and both sides apparently were satisfied with the outcome. For one thing, Rudy was to be of the "Scandals", which White greatly desired. On the other hand, Rudy had an official ruling that White couldn't throw him out of the show, which is all that Rudy was.

ported as 37.1 feet. The previous record mark of 31.4 was established 82 years ago.

Officials expressed concern the heavy rainfall today might bring new hazards.

At least one person drowned. A three-year-old girl who had sought refuge at her uncle's home was killed by a bus.

Miles of river front streets, embracing virtually all the wholesale business area in this insurance center of 165,000, stood under 10 feet or more of water.

Two hundred fifty persons were marooned in a large apartment house, surrounded by muddy water. They obtained food from a flooded store on the ground floor, and the fire department kept the company's men on duty.

Hospitals in Candlelight.

Hospitals encountered serious difficulty by the power failure. One institution reported operations were performed by candle-light.

The Connecticut carried houses, barns and other debris on its crest to be emptied in Long Island Sound.

Concern grew for the safety of the 1,200-foot highway bridge spanning the river near Middletown, 16 miles below Hartford. Water reached the structure's planking last night and a crew of watchmen hastily was withdrawn.

Two oil tanks near the river bank only a half mile above the bridge shifted with the current during the night. Coast guard craft stood ready to try to prevent their breaking loose and crashing down on the 40-year-old structure.

Middletown, like Hartford, was in darkness throughout the night and about 550 persons were homeless.

Relief Complicated

By MAX FULLERTON

(Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press).

Pittsburgh, March 21—A sticky spring snow fell three inches deep over flood-ravaged western Pennsylvania today, complicating the task of caring for thousands of destitute and homeless.

The blinding storm raged from Johnstown, scene of one great inundation, to Wheeling, W. Va., just getting out of flood water.

It disrupted already crippled traffic movement and hampered relief workers in getting vital aid to the sick and destitute.

The snow storm came after a rain had fallen most of the night.

The freezing temperatures which accompanied the storm intensified the suffering of thousands, some of whom have been finding shelter in tents, others in unheated buildings.

Increased stoking of furnaces added to fire hazards, already serious because of a water shortage. Traffic crawled at a snail's pace through the slippery mush.

It was feared railroads, just beginning to get service reestablished, would be further delayed.

Thousands Destitute

Relief workers, reaching families, isolated more than two days, found thousands without food, light, heat or water.

Pittsburgh received a supply of antitoxins by airplane. There was plenty of food, but danger of a water famine still frightened the 700,000 residents.

Thirty giant tank cars of water were started from Philadelphia. Officials announced the city's key pumping station probably would be running tomorrow.

A heavy rain during the night lessened danger from fire. Firemen prepared to use dynamite to conserve water.

The falling back of the flood waters of the Monongahela and Allegheny disclosed 37 dead in western Pennsylvania and 17 in and near Wheeling, W. Va., inundated by the turbulent Ohio river.

The damage in this area may go beyond $150,000,000.

The task of caring for more than 5,000 homeless in the Pittsburgh-Wheeling district taxed relief agencies to the utmost.

10,000 Homeless Treated

Wheeling still housed some 10,000 homeless in emergency quarters, but waters were gone from the populous island section. A few hundred refugees returned to their homes.

Food and medical supplies were coming in rapidly to Johnstown, devastated Tuesday night by the rampaging Conemaugh. Mayor Daniel J. Shields asked the federal government for a $10,000,000 relief fund.

Enough electric power was restored in Pittsburgh to meet emergency conditions, but homes and business structures were without electricity.

Partial water service was restored to the heavily-populated south hills section, the first district to run out of drinking water.

Thousands aided in clearing the great department store centers of muddy residue. Hundreds of pumpers emptied basements of water.

Pittsburgh was comparatively free from vandalism, but reports of looting were received from several outlying communities. National guardsmen, still on duty here and at Johnstown, also were sent to Everett to preserve order.

Wheeling had all its utility services in operation, but the use of gas was not allowed on the island. Police, assisted by coast guard boats brought free Chicago, rushed coal, food and blankets to thousands who had walled out the flood on the upper floors of their homes.

BY JOHN FRYE

Associated Press Staff Writer.

Flood Waters Spread.

Portsmouth, O., March 21 (AP)—Ohio river flood waters spread out over lowland areas from Marietta to Cincinnati in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky today as their crest moved toward Huntington, W. Va., with apparently abated force.

Residents of Proctorsville, O., opposite Huntington, awoke to find themselves on an island. A ferry boat transported to Huntington any of the 1,000 residents who cared to leave.

Near-crest waters moved into Pomeroy, which reported a stage of 55 feet at 8 a. m. A 55½-foot crest was expected at noon. Six to nine feet of water poured through the streets.

From Pittsburgh to below Marietta the river, which has carved a path of death and devastation in the valley for five days, was falling.

Receding waters in the upper valley left marks of the worst flood in history, but below Marietta the crest marks were far below 1913 flood levels and Huntington rivermen said the surging waters apparently were "flattening out" and might not go above 1933 crests.

No Great Rise Expected.

Veteran flood observers throughout the lower valley region pointed out that the river was not expected to rise above ordinary flood stages and that districts now inundated are nearly victims of high waters.

Seven U. S. Coast guard boats stood ready at Huntington, 50 miles upstream, to respond to any emergency.

While the advance guard of debris knocked at Portsmouth's 40-foot flood wall, six feet from the top, U. S. engineers' reports of heavy rains since noon yesterday 180 miles up the valley caused disaster relief workers to plan to move additional hundreds from their homes at Huntington. Already 2,500 hundred families had been moved.

Thousands Leave Homes.

Ahead of the sweeping crest down the river thousands of other residents on both sides left their homes as the water encroached.

Behind the crest were an ever-growing host of refugees, health authorities working without rest to prevent disease outbreaks. $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 damage in the steel mills, pottery plants, and coal mines of the upper valley, shortages of food and drinking water, and misery or discomfort almost everywhere in its 400-mile path.

Streets were clear in Bridgeport for the first time in days.

Residents of Marietta watched the dirty water drop slowly. It was ten feet deep in their streets yesterday.

A sturdy reinforcement of sandbags two feet high lay along the top of Portsmouth's three-mile river wall, giving the city at least a four-foot margin over the expected 55-foot flood peak predicted for Sunday noon. Valves prevented the river from backing up in the sewers and spurting out in the streets already below river level.

Other cities, upstream from Portsmouth in Gallipolis and Ironton and downstream from Huntington, New Richmond, Jacked such protection and saw the river creep up in their streets. Low-lying homes and stores had been evacuated.

Moscow Expects War In Far East

This border guard of the Russian-trained army of Outer Mongolia, a sovietized outlier state between Manchoukuo and Siberia, was photographed as it mounted a sand dune west of Lake Bor to look over a region where several bloody frontier clashes have taken place.

Fights on Mongolian Border Called Japanese Battle Tests

By JOHN LLOYD

Moscow (AP)—A Soviet-Japanese war is held by many to be inevitable, but there is disagreement as to when it may be expected to break out.

The two nations have appeared to be on the verge of war several times since the Japanese occupation of Manchuria in 1931, but conflicts stopped short of large scale hostilities.

Border clashes have continued at more or less frequent intervals and talk of non-aggression pacts and frontier demilitarization has achieved no concrete results.

Repeated encounters on the border of Outer Mongolia, sovietized buffer state, have further complicated the situation. Moscow has given notice that it will not tolerate a Japanese invasion of Mongolia.

Japanese contentions that the incidents on both the Siberian and Mongolian borders are due to undefined bounderies, fall on deaf ears here. The Kremlin insists that the frontiers are clearly marked.

German Alliance Suspected

It has been made clear that the Russians would reject any suggestion for revision of the borders. They have proclaimed a willingness, however to sign a non-aggression pact or participate in mixed-commission investigations of frontier incidents.

Soviet spokesmen have not minced words in accusing the Jananese of preparing war. Their principal concern, judging from published statements, is that Japan and Germany might make war on the Soviet Union simultaneously.

Reports of a Japanese-German entente have been received here without skepticism and furnished one of the announced reasons why the Russians deemed it necessary to build up their army to 1,500,000 men.

Great secrecy is maintained as to the disposition of these forces, but the number posted in the Far East is generally believed to exceed 250,000 and may total 400,000 men. There is also a strong air force in the East, with perhaps 1,000 planes.

The naval building program has been marked by fervish construction of submarines, many of which are said to be stationed in the Sea of Japan.

Soviet Influence Dominant

Defense of Outer Mongolia is of extreme importance to the Russians in that Japanese occupation would threaten the trans-Siberian railway. If that line were severed, the Far Eastern army would be cut off from headquarters in Moscow. The railway runs within 100 miles of the Outer Mongolian border.

Outer Mongolia is dependent on the Soviet Union financially, economically and politically. Its army is Soviet-trained and little doubt is held that its military supplies come exclusively from Russia.

Formerly a "theocratic" monarchy, in which the head of the Buddhist church held sovereign power, Mongolia turned to parliamentary government after the death of the "Living Buddha" in 1924. The government was soon sovietized.

Most of the clashes on the Siberian border have been in the Grodekovo region, 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok and not far from Lake Khanka. There on January 30 sharp hand-to-hand fighting occurred after a mutinous company of Manchukuoan soldiers killed their Japanese officers and found refuge on Soviet territory.

Accounts Of Fights Differ

According to Soviet accounts, Japanese and loyal Manchoukuoan troops crossed the border the next day in pursuit. Ten Japanese, two Manchoukuoans and three Russians were killed in the fighting. Tokyo blamed the clash on a Soviet invasion of Manchoukuo.

The Soviet government protested to Tokyo and two weeks later closed its consulate general at Mukden.

Most serious of the recent clashes on the Mongolian frontier was that in the region of Lake Bor on February 12. Japanese accounts said 1,000 Mongolian troops invaded Manchoukuoan territory, but the Mongolians claimed that the clash resulted from an attack by 500 Japanese and Manchoukuoans on the Mongolian border post of Bulun Dersu.

Claim Allies Quit Parley

Negotiations for settlement of the Mongolian-Manchoukuoan border dispute broke down November 27 of last year. The Mongolians said the Japanese and their allies bolted the conference after Mongolia had rejected a Japanese-Manchoukuoan proposal to send permanent observers into Mongolia.

At the time, the Mongolian reports said, the Japanese and Manchoukuoans threatened to resort to force and occupy Urga.

It is generally conceded that in case of a war with Japan, the Soviet Union would have a hard time defending Vladivostok against attack from the air and the sea. Hence, they have built their vital military centers inland.

British Request Hitler to Offer Couter-Plans

the belt," declaring British and Italian assurances of support to France and Belgium in case Germany declined to accept the four-power plan carried far-reaching consequences.

"Germany is ready to withdraw into the seclusion where she can keep her good conscience," Hitler himself asserted in a speech last night at Hamburg.

First impressions indicated, however, that he would attempt to negotiate away some of the sharpest points, rather than reject the whole program flatly and take the consequences of isolation or the possible sanctions threatened by Britain and Italy.

No Foreign Troops

The third Reich, under the patriotic spell of Der Fuehrer, made it clear Germany does not want foreign troops on her soil as proposed in the Locarno powers' suggestion for an international force to patrol a "buffer zone" pending a new security treaty.

Nor did Germany like the aspect of the decision of the other nations to establish or continue contacts between their army general staffs in her absence from the consultations.

As for the proposal that Germany present its case against the Franco-Soviet agreement—on which Hitler based his denunciation of the Locarno pact—to the permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague, foreign office spokesmen said:

"The men who made it are good enough politicians to know whether Locarno was broken by the Franco-Russian pact or not. They do not need to ask the opinion of a lot of old men."

The spokesman said presence of foreign troops in Germany would create immense difficulties with the population, and "increase friction."

Even the proposal to hold an international conference to consider peace, revision of the League covenant, arms limitations and economic relations drew criticism because it added other items to Hitler's offer for 25-year non-aggression pacts.

Teacher's Meeting Here Thursday

Thursday evening a large assemblage of teachers from the Schoolwomen's and Schoolmen's Clubs of Kingston and vicinity met at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Attractive tables, the handiwork of Miss Winifred Sullivan, and in keeping with the St. Patrick's season, added much to the enjoyment of a delicious banquet. Mr. Dunbar of the high school led the assembly singing. Mrs. Finerty accompanied him at the piano.

Miss Regina McAndrew, president of Schoolwomen's Club, welcomed the teachers and guests and turned the meeting over to Mr. Dumm, president of the Schoolmen's Club, who very ably acted as toastmaster. Mr. Dumm presented several guests and Superintendent Van Ingen who spoke briefly. He then called on Miss Frieda Hayes, president of the State Teachers Welfare League, to introduce the guest speaker of the evening.

Dr. H. Claude Hardy, superintendent of schools of White Plains and state director of the National Education Association, delivered to the teachers after several humorous stories, a most vital and inspirational address. He said that when we think of education, whether we like it or not, we must think of it nationally rather than locally. Although New York state has lead in education, epidemics are spreading from other states that are less fortunate and are trying to destroy that which we have struggled to attain. Dr. Hardy said that the "three pigs", namely politics, prejudice and propaganda, are enemies of education. He said it is time for the public schol teachers of the nation to unite in an emphatic protest of these enemies. Dr. Hardy closed his message with a glowing tribute to teachers.

PAST MATRONS AND PATRONS' NIGHT WAS OBSERVED.

March 13. Clinton Chapter, No. 445, Order of the Eastern Star, observed past matrons and patrons' night.

After the business session, the guest speaker for the evening, Most Worthy Mae Gooderson, was presented to the worthy matron, Lena Burgher, by Right Worthy Mary J. Howard, district deputy grand matron of the Greene-Ulster district, who spoke most highly of Sister Gooderson.

The worthy matron greeted Sister Gooderson and she was escorted to the East.

Right Worthy Ethel Jones then introduced Most Worthy Harry Valin Gooderson, grand patron of the grand chapter, state of New York, telling of the honor he paid to our chapter by his attendance that evening. Brother Gooderson was greeted in the East by his mother who was grateful for this privilege. The grand patron then introduced all past and present officers and they were accorded the courtesies of the East.

The chapter was called to recreation and the officers examplified the degree called Opportunity and Experience, during which the high spots of each matron's year was read by Sister Beatty. The past matrons and patrons present were then escored through the door of opportunity and experience, receiving a flower and gift.

Sister Gooderson then rendered a most inspiring talk which held every person in the audience. She spoke on the past leaders who built our chapter to be what it is today, and then being so close to Easter, she said how happy we should all be for the day of rejoicing was drawing so close. Each and every one enjoyed Sister Gooderson more than words could dare express.

Brother Gooderson was asked to say a few words which he did, but stated that it was hard to add to the most splendid speech of our guest speaker. He also congratulated our past officers upon their work, well done.

Mary J. Howard, district deputy spoke briefly for as she stated the hour was late and many had miles to travel. She thanked the matrons for all the courtesies extended to her. The assistant grand lecturer, William Wiles, spoke briefly, followed by Right Worthy Johnson and Hook.

Kendalls Give N. Y. U. Stars A Tough Battle Losing, 21-24

Eddie Coughlin's Kendalls gave the New York University Stars a run for their money in the feature at the Municipal Auditorium before more than 500 fans by rolling up 21 points as they held King Kong Klein and his collegians to 24.

The New Yorkers were less impressive than advance notices augured they would be, and encountered stiffer opposition at the hands of the Oilers than they did at Newburgh and other Hudson valley communities where they won by overwhelming scores.

It was apparent that the Students were unaccustomed to hard play, such as the Kendalls are used to in their semi-pro campaigns around Ulster county, and the so-called bruisers of Madison Square Garden fame looked beseechingly at Referee Hess Kantrowitz at various times for complimentaries. He was not too generous, however, although the game ran up a total of 24 fouls. Let 'em play was his motto.

Rubinstein Stars

Willie Rubinstein with 12 points, eight on fields, led the New Yorkers in scoring and Johnny Zeeh and Bobby Cullum, ex-State Leaguer, topped the Kendalls with seven and six respectively. Cullum played only one period, the last. Four of his points were made on fouls, Bobby capitalizing on four out of four.

The Kendalls copped the first quarter, 3-1. Zeeh's field and Cowboy Evory's foul made up their total. Rubinstein made a free one for the Collegians. In the second period the Coughlin men made only five markers while the N. Y. U. experts collected 13, Rubinstein getting loose for four fields. Klein made two fouls and Lennie Maidman a deuce and complimentary. Two fields, one by Zeeh and the other by Andy Dykes, and a foul by Chipe Rhymer, gave the Oilers their five. The half ended 14-8 in favor of the N. Y. U. Stars.

The third quarter saw both clubs score six points. Rubinstein's two fouls, Weinstein's deuce and free shot and another complimentary by Seigal gave the visitors their six. Three fields, one each by Rhymer, Zeeh and Evory accounted for the Kendall's score. In the fourth and closing quarter, the Oilers outscored their opponents Bobby Cullum, relieving Dykes, getting six markers on four free throws making good on every one he had a chance on and a deuce, and Zeeh's complimentary.

Cullum lost four points in the last period, when the calfskin bounced out of the hoop on shots from the center of the court, which would have made a different story if they had cut the cords. The Kendalls missed a number of scrimmage shots in the first quarter, too, that would have helped them if they had gone in. The New Yorkers also took quite a number of pops at the basket that didn't count. Rubinstein was the only one who lived up to advance notices about prolific scoring.

A Good Comparison.

Those who turned out to see the match, anticipated an overwhelming defeat for the Kendalls, but were surprised when the former N. Y. U. tossers showed up no better than some of the little semi-pro clubs that appeared against the Coughlinmen at the Auditorium in preliminaries to the American League games this season. Last night's exhibition by the collegians gave local fans a good idea of the difference between professional ball, with its exciting moments and colorful play, and scholastic competition with its powder puff rules.

Some fans, discussing the game at its conclusion, wondered what would have happened if Pop Morgenweck's Cities Service club had taken on the Collegians who might have played them if they had not signed to meet the Kendalls. Such a game would end in a basketball slaughter, most of the cage game enthusiasts agreed.

SO SAY THE MANAGERS

STANLEY HARRIS

(This is the second of a series of eight articles written for The Associated Press by major league managers)

By STANLEY HARRIS
Washington Senators

Orlando, Fla. (AP)—It would be ridiculous for me to attempt to forecast where Washington will finish in the 1936 American League race, but I'll promise that the club will surprise everyone. It's a young, hustling team. The blue sky is the limit.

I have been managing major league clubs now for three seasons, but I rate this one as the most interesting one of them all. It averages less than 27 years per man, has unbounded enthusiasm and unlimited potentialities. The big question is how long it will require to polish off the rough edges of inexperience.

Ups and Downs Ahead

During the campaign, I'll sprout a few gray hairs on wild days that are bound to come when my youngsters stumble over the pebbles of inexperience, but they'll paint them black for me on other days with their brilliance and hustle.

So far, our two greatest experiments with youngsters, Cecil Travis at shortstop and 19-year-old Johnny Lewis at third, appear so successful that I am convinced, at last, that there is a Santa Claus. Travis, formerly posted at third and in the outfield, has surprised everyone by the way he has taken over the job. So has Lewis. Both lack finesse but that should come with consistent, hard drilling. Jesse Hill and Wilson Miles also look good in the outfield.

As to pitching, I can't say yet, except that we should have a strong staff. Newsom, De Shong and Linke should be able to start out winning. Whitehill and Weaver appear in fine shape. I'm high on the chances, too, of Henry Coppola and Dick Lanahan, whom I rate as a pair of the most promising young pitchers in baseball.

Chance For Senators

Right now, the pennant race looks like a four-club fight among Detroit, Cleveland, New York and Boston. I could not pick even the one I think has the best chance. But I do know this: That whenever you have a four-club pennant fight, two of those contenders usually blow up somewhere along the route, leaving the first division door wide open for a young ball club. Maybe Washington will sneak in there.

Cochrane Rates Tiger Cubs Ahead Of 'Two or Three Other A. L. Clubs'

Lakeland, Fla. (AP)—Manager Mickey Cochrane thinks so highly of the rookies in the Detroit Tiger spring camp here that he says "we have a better team on the bench than two or three other American League Clubs have in the field."

"Our recruits could beat their regulars," said the enthusiastic Mike, without mentioning the names of the teams he had in mind. "We have the best lot of rookies I have ever seen.

York Shows Promise

Rudy York will do all right on first base. He certainly can hit and on top of that he's a good fielder. Chester Laabs is the best natural hitter that I've seen in a long time. He's very fast and has a great throwing arm.

"Dixie Howell (former Alabama grid star) has improved wonderfully since he was with us last spring. He has developed into a good shortstop. He can cover ground, knows what to do with the ball and there's not a better throwing arm in the American League.

"Gilbert English can be used either at second or third base. Don Ross looks great at third. He has a remarkable pair of hands and a powerful throwing arm. He has the earmarks of a good hitter. Chester Morgan (like Laabs an outfield candidate) can hit, but his fielding is not so good.

"With York at first, English on second, Howell at short and Ross on third you have a pretty swell infield. Morgan, Hubert Bates and Laabs will take care of your outfield and you won't have to look far to discover three teams in the league that this outfit could beat."

Ross Is Impressive

Cochrane is particularly impressed with Ross, who is hitting the ball hard and fielding in major league style, although he is fresh from Beaumont and just 21. Marvin Owen, regular third-sacker for two seasons, will have to step lively to hold his job, Cochrane intimates.

Mickey, of course, has a few other ball players in camp, fellows like Gehringer, Simmons, Goslin, Fox, Rogell and a catcher named Cochrane. They haven't done badly the past few years and from all reports should make strong bids for regular jobs.

Eastern States Basketball Matches

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—Ralph Knight, chairman of the eastern states basketball tournament to be played here April 2-4, invited St. John's Preparatory School of New York today to be the eighth entry. Seven championship teams from five states and the District of Columbia have entered.

St. John's won the Catholic High School A. A. title yesterday by defeating LaSalle Academy. Knight said school officials would vote on the invitation Monday.

Teams who have accepted are: Massanutten Military Academy of Woodstock, Va.; White Plains, N. Y., High School; Eastern High, Washington, D. C., defending the title won here last year; Trenton, N. J., High; Brown Preparatory, Philadelphia; St. Mary's Academy, Glens Falls, and Brockton, Mass., High.

Monday's Games In City Bowling League

Livingstons vs. Downtown Merchants at Immanuels.

Uptown Merchants vs. Colonials at Colonials.

Y. M. C. A. vs. Lyceum at Y. M. C. A.

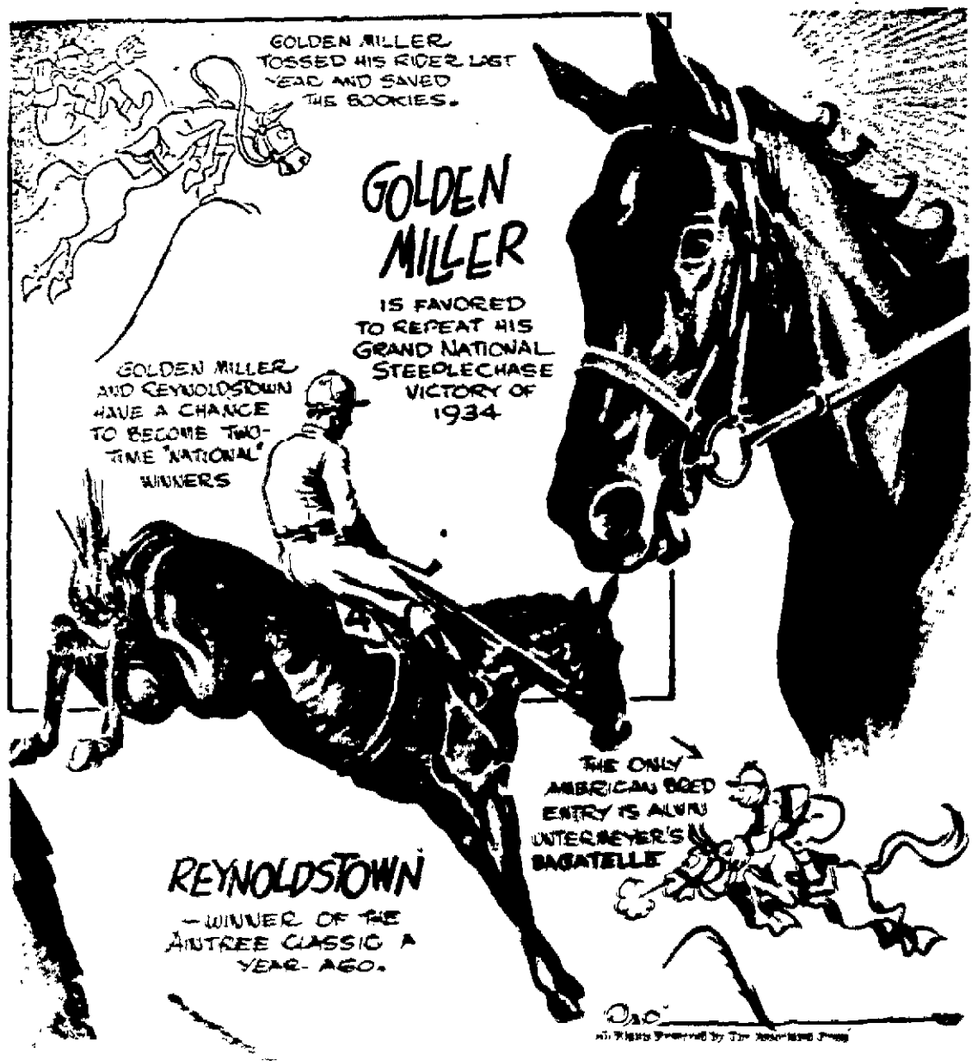

With the Golfers On Southern Courses

Charleston, S. C., March 21 (AP)—Golfers in the $3,000 tournament of gardens faced a double round windup over the Wappoo course here today to make up eighteen holes which were lost yesterday on account of rain.

Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., former pro at the Charleston Country Club and the defending champion, went into the final 36 holes with a five-stroke advantage over the rest of the field which included most of golf's big names.

Picard scored a 67-69—136—six under par—for the first two rounds. The Chicago pair of Dick Metz and Frank Walsh trailed with 141's, while the veteran Walter Hagen of Detroit and Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., each had 142.

Kingston Stars Snow Under Schuyler High Varsity, 35-21

The Kingston Stars, the same quintet of basketeers that won the DUSO League championship for Kingston High School this year, took over Ben Becker's Schuyler High School Varsity, 35-22, in the preliminary to the Kendall-N. Y. U. Stars game, Friday night at the Municipal Auditorium, pleasing more than 500 fans, many of whom got their first glimpse of the former Maroon and White squad in action.

Last night's prelim stole the spotlight from the feature attraction as Charlies Bock ripped the cords for 16 points, and his brother, Eddie, and Lou Glenn popped the caltskin through the hoop for six and eight points respectively. Glenn scored all of his markers on four fields in the first half, his tosses being spectacular ones from the center of the court. Axelrod, Albany center, starred for his team with 12 points.

The ex-Kingston High team was loudly cheered as it romped on to victory over the Albany county champions, who now are to represent northern New York in the race for the Class B championship of the state. Some 300 high school students attended the game and although the institution had nothing to do with arranging the contest with Albany, just couldn't refrain from giving some of the yells that helped the Maroon and White cagers cop the DUSO tilt.

During the first half, which ended 13-12, Kingston leading, Schuyler put on a classy exhibition. But in the second half, from the third quarter on when Charlie Bock began popping 'em in the Beckermen fell behind.

America's Weight Tossers Not Too Good

By ALAN GOULD

New York, March 21 (AP).—Ever since the celebrated Boston Tea Party, Americans have been adept at tossing things around, for distance or for accuracy.

With the revival of the classic Olympic games, our supremacy in this respect was consistently maintained until javelin-throwing was introduced. No match for the Scandinavians at spear-tossing, our brawny lads have had their leadership challenged otherwise by Europeans in the art of heaving athletic implements.

At the last Olympics, the U. S. A. broke even in the four weight events, retaining the shotput and discus championships.

Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan of Ireland, won the hammer throw for the second straight time, and Finns led by Matti Jarvinen dominated the javelin-tossing competition. Both U. S. winners, Leo Sexton and John Anderson, have retired.

Since then a husky Swede, Harald Andersson, has broken the world record for discus throwing and all things considered, it appears the Americans will be pressed to escape a "shutout" in the Olympic weight-tossing at Berlin next August.

This country cannot count on retaining even the shotput honors unless Jack Torrance of Louisiana, the world record holder, comes back. Torrance surpassed 57 feet in 1934 to shatter all records, but he was scarcely able to better 50 feet this winter and consistently was beaten by Boston's sturdy Dmitri (Dimmy) Zaitz.

Joe Mangan Smashes Canadian Mile Record

Toronto, March 21 (AP).—Joe Mangan, who studies law at Cornell, plunks a banjo in his spare moments and runs mile races with considerable success, evidently isn't worried about the danger of being "burned out" by too much competition in the Olympic year.

While his winter rivals, Glenn Cunningham of Kansas and Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania, remained idle, Mangan has stepped out twice in the last few days to smash the Canadian mile record.

After running a mile in 4:16.3 at Hamilton Wednesday, clipping three tenths of a second from Cunningham's Canadian indoor mark but losing to an opponent who had a 40-yard handicap, Mangan cut loose last night and won the mile feature at the Maple Leaf Gardens games in 4:16.2.

Frank Nordell of the New York A. C., made a great effort to keep pace but faded at the finish and was third behind Bill Daley of Detroit University.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Associated Press)

St. Petersburg—The Yankee hirelings were wondering today whether the visit of Clark Griffith of the Senators yesterday meant some kind of a trade was in the wind. Griffith and Joe McCarthy had a long talk but said they were merely passing the time of day. Some of the boys didn't take these statements seriously.

Clearwater—Ed Brandt and Fred Frankhouse shed no tears when they found the Sarasota grounds too wet to play the Red Sox yesterday. The team took a nine mile ferry ride from Bradenton to Sarasota.

Pensacola—The Giants set up some kind of a record yesterday when they played the Nashville Vols before 20 spectators, excluding newspapermen and non-combatant ball players. It was windy and cold and the dust swirled in from the outfield desert.

Duluth Johnny Erpino, 150, Duluth, outpointed Jack Kranz, 144, Gary, Ind., (8).

Los Angeles—Frankie Wallace, 136, Cleveland, outpointed Floyd Jones, 135, Los Angeles, (10).

Missoula, Mont.—Spence Fontaine, 150, Missoula, outpointed Jimmy Thomas, 137½, Pittsburgh, (10).

To Have Two Softball Leagues in Kingston

According to present plans there will be two softball leagues in Kingston the coming season. They will be known as the Industrial League and the Club League.

A decision to this effect was reached at the initial meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association of Kingston, held at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night. Charles Winters, president, presided at the meeting, which was attended by representatives from the Chevrolets, Katz Metal Works, Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, Board of Public Works, Studt's grocers, Colonials.

President Winters named the following committees to report at a meeting to be held Friday, March 27. Organization—Arthur Kaplan, Warren Smith; rules—Harry Rieman, Ben Short, Mr. Doyle.

All teams or organizations desiring to be represented in the new loop are asked to send representatives to the meeting on March 27, when schedules will be worked out and arrangements made to secure suitable playing fields.

It is hoped to get games going at an early date.

Morgenweck Gets Even With Passaic for Unfair Deal Here

Because of the sorry incident that occurred at the Municipal Auditorium last Wednesday, when the Passaic Red Devils refused to finish their American Basketball game with the Cities Service club unless Frank Morgenweck paid the guarantee of $100 in advance, John J. O'Brien, league president, has taken a hand in chastising the Reds at the behest of Morgie.

In a letter to Manager Fred Romp of Passaic, O'Brien says: "In spite of all my assurances to you that this guarantee would be paid either by Morgenweck or the League, your players apparently did not have sufficient confidence in your ability to protect them, with the result that the American League received a bad set-back in a town that has been an asset to it all during the present season."

Referee Chuck Solodare told newspapermen the occurrence was the most embarrassing thing he ever witnessed in his connection with the American League.

Along with putting up the kick at the Auditorium, the Passaic club wanted to cancel a scheduled game with Kingston down in Jersey. About this President O'Brien has ruled that "It is incumbent on you (Passaic) to stage the game or pay the guarantee, $100, or forfeit all rights in the American League as is the procedure when any team refuses to play a scheduled game. There can be no deviation from Mr. Morgenweck's request, particularly so in view of the unfair actions of the Passaic team at Kingston on March 18."

Church Basketball League Games Ended For 1935-36 Season

The Church Basketball League has officially closed its activities for the season, which opened with the games played Monday night, December 9. The seven teams composing the League have been playing Monday nights since that date, games being played in the gym at the Y. M. C. A.

There was one postponement of regularly scheduled games, those which were to have been played Monday night, February 17. The original intention was to play these postponed games at the end of the schedule, but as the results would have no effect on the standing of the teams it has been decided to call them off, consequently there will be no games played at the Y on Monday night.

Port Ewen M. E., which took the first half championship by virtue of winning in a play-off with the Presbyterians, went through the second half without a defeat and remains the undisputed champions of the Church League, with the Redeemers in second place for the last half and Clinton Avenue third.

Following is the standing of the teams at the end of the second half, showing games won and lost during that half:

Middletown Plans to Greet 3,000 Firemen

Representatives of the city and of the fire department are working hard in preparation for the 47th annual convention and parade of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, to be held in Middletown June 23 to 25. The sponsors are expecting to see from thirty to forty thousand visitors in Middletown on parade day.

It is estimated that the parade and convention will cost the city and firemen $6,400. Of this sum the city has already appropriated $4,000. The remainder is to be raised by block dances, program advertising and boxing shows. Nearly 60 out-of-town fire companies have signified their intention of taking part in the parade and the committee plans to feed 3,000 firemen on parade day, a huge tent to be erected for that purpose.

New Deal's 470-Million Soil Conservation Plan Begins Rolling Today

Substitute AAA Plan Will Provide Average Payment of $10 per Acre; Some Details Are Not Yet Perfected.

MONEY MUDDLE

Controversy Over Federal Finances Stirred Up Today by Roosevelt Assertion on Budget Estimates.

Washington, March 21 (AP).—Flashing throughout the country the signal to start the complex soil conservation machine rolling, the New Deal strove today to bring the nation's farmers within the $470,000,000 program before spring planting starts in earnest.

Farmers were summoned hurriedly to many conferences to organize county producers' associations. These will help administer the vast conservation plan, basis for subsidy payments to farmers.

Secretary Wallace had announced that the new program, substitute for the invalidated agriculture adjustment act, would provide an average payment of $10 for each acre of commercial, soil-depleting crop lands shifted to soil conserving uses.

A short time earlier President Roosevelt had signed an appropriation bill carrying $440,000,000 for the program and making $30,000,000 of unexpended money available.

Wallace acknowledged that some details of the program are not perfected. But operation is to begin immediately. With the aim of shifting 30,000,000 acres from soil depleting crops to conservation growths in 1936.

The secretary said the program was planned on an estimate that 80 per cent of eligible farmers would participate. Farmers are expected to begin signing applications for participation within a week.

If a farmer is to receive a subsidy, his acreage of soil-conserving or soil-building crops must be equal to 20 per cent of the farm's soil-depleting base, or equal to the maximum limit set for diversion.

Financial Controversy.

A warm political controversy over federal finances was stirred up today by President Roosevelt's statement in his recent relief message that budget estimates would, "in effect," permit continuing reductions in the treasury deficit.

Republican spokesmen asserted the claim was "fictitious" and "utterly impossible" in view of prospective bonus and relief expenditures.

Administration officials conceded the deficit this year probably will reach the highest peak in history, but they contended it was a "paper deficit" and that because of sinking funds being provided by new taxes the president was fundamentally correct.

Chief cause of the conflict was the soldiers' bonus, which congress voted to pay in cashable bonds June 15.

If all bonus certificates should be exchanged for bonds by June 30, the end of the fiscal year, this year's deficit would climb close to $5,500,000,000 by far the all-time peak. The biggest in history was $3,989,000,000 in 1934.

Some For Bonus.

Only $1,740,000,000 of this huge deficit would result from the bonus. Some of the bonus certificates are not expected to be exchanged until after next July 1. Therefore the sum they represent would be added to next year's deficit instead of this year's making the latter figure less than $5,500,000,000.

Democratic spokesmen place the bonus in a separate category from ordinary relief expenditures. They said the new bonus taxes of $120,000,000 a year asked by the president would more than take care of this and that it could only technically be counted in this year's deficit.

They placed in the same category, expenditures under this year's $500,000,000 farm program. They pointed to the sinking fund to be created by temporary taxes over the next two or three years to provide for it.

With these items eliminated, administration leaders contended the president was holding to his budget estimate of a $3,234,000,000 deficit for the current fiscal year as against $3,575,000,000 last year.

HURLEY SCHOOL CHILDREN ELECT OFFICERS MARCH 6

At a meeting held on March 6 officers were elected by the Hurley School Township Association to run their offices till the period ending June 16. Those elected after a spirited discussion are mentioned below:

Supervisor—Margaret Brown.
Town Clerk—James Winchell.
Treasurer—Dorothy Stagg.
High Commissioner—Peter Palen.
Health Commissioner — Gilbert Lockwood.
Constable—Carl Huthsteiner.
Art Supervisor—Margaret Winchell.
Judge—S. Belote.

During the last month the school has been swept by a large attack of measles, temporarily depleting the classes, but now that spring is coming the children have started to return.

The boys are starting to play marbles now in earnest on the schoolgrounds.

British Isle Considers Defense.

St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands (AP)—This tiny British island off the coast of France is perturbed about defense. Major General H. de C. Martelli, the lieutenant governor, recently advised the states, or local parliament, to revise the compulsory militia service which has existed since before the World war. Even this, he pointed out, would leave problems of sea and air defense untouched.

Several Cases Before Judge Culloton Here

Joseph Weber of 54 Howland avenue and Theodore Bell of Wall street, were arrested yesterday on charges of public intoxication. This morning in police court both pleaded guilty and were fined $5 each by Judge Culloton.

Lawrence Bennett, a negro of Newburgh, arrested on a charge of passing a full stop sign at Broadway and Strand, was fined $2.

All four cases involving the recent seizure of four pin machines in the city were adjourned this morning to April 2. The reason given for the adjournment was that there is now a bill pending in the state legislature to legalize the use of these machines.

Record Audience at Mendelssohn Club

If the Mendelssohn Club of Kingston continues to grow in membership, the club concerts will soon have to be held in the Municipal Auditorium, for the Kingston High School was filled to a little more than capacity on Friday evening when the club gave its concert of the thirty-third season, Elmer A. Tidmarsh, conductor and Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., the accompanist. The club presented as its guest artists, "The Brahms Quartet;" sopranos, Frances Newsom and Ruth Dawson; contraltos, Elinor Markey and Lydia Summers, and Charles Gilbert Spross, pianist and accompanist.

Since last heard the Mendelssohn Club has greatly strengthened its tenor choir and added a number of younger voices, all adding to the effectiveness of the big chorus.

The program was a very ambitious one, opening with a cheerful number, "Invocation of Orpheus" by Jacopa Peri which put the audience in a happy frame of mind to enjoy the evening's music. The better balance of the club as to voices was very noticeable in this very first number.

It was followed by "Morning Hymn," by Isidor-George Henschel and that in turn was followed by "Creation's Hymn," by Beethoven, arranged by Sachs, a truly impressive composition. Throughout the evening the club's attacks and releases were especially good.

The Brahms Quartet won a most cordial reception as they came onto the stage in their quaint but exceedingly picturesque hoop-skirted gowns of a century ago, as becoming as they were picturesque. The quartet was accompanied by Mr. Spross. An excellent ensemble, good tonality, and real legato marked the quartet's singing throughout and their interpretation of their songs showed real musicianship. One of the quartet gave a brief sketch of each song before its singing, which made the foreign-language songs the more enjoyable to the large audience. Their first group included "Der Taum" by Urspruch; "Nun Stephen Die Rosen" by Brahms; "Und Gehst du uber den Kirchoff;" by Brahms and "Tanzlied" by Urspruch. In response to the very hearty applause the quartet sang one of Brahms' favorite songs, "Wiegenlied," and sang it delightfully.

The piece de resistance of the evening as far as the Mendelssohn Club was concerned was "Lochinvar," (poem by Sir Walter Scott), the music by William G. Hammond. The men sang this stirring ballad with fervor and dramatic effect.

While the welcome afforded the Mendelssohn Club, the generous composite host; Mr. Tidmarsh the conductor and The Brahms Quartet had been hearty and appreciative, that given Charles Gilbert Spross by the club as well as the audience was in the nature of an innovation.

With his usual fine technique and interpretation, Mr. Spross played three very brilliant numbers; "Concert Study" by Martucci; "Die Prinzessin (Princess) by Grieg and "Schatz-Waltzer" (from "The Gypsy Baron" by Dohnanyi), arranged by Strauss. In response to the continuing applause Mr. Spross returned and confided to the audience that he had been playing for the Mendelssohn Club, 25 years. Some of the few charter members, had, he confessed, asked him to play a number that he had played 20 years ago, and really had almost forgotten he ever had played, but his memory had not failed him, and the gay and rhythmic number won another burst of applause.

When the Brahms Quartet returned each of the young ladies carried a quaint old-fashioned nosegay, which added a realistic touch to their picture of long ago.

Their second group of songs was particularly lovely throughout. The numbers were "When As I Glance" by John Bennet; "What Saith My Dainty Darling" by Morley; "All Thru the Night" (Welsh Air) and "Will O' the Wisp" by Charles Gilbert Spross. Mr. Spross accompanied the quartet and their charming encore number, "I Dream of Jeanie" by the American composer, Foster.

The Mendelssohn Club did some of its best work of the evening musically in their singing of "Calm and Storm," by Robert W. Gibb, a composition of impressive contrasts as to sentiment and music.

A particularly pleasing number was "Summer Evening" (Old Finnish Folk Song) by Selim Palmgren with English version by Deems Taylor with incidental solo by a member of the Brahms Quartet. In response to the hearty applause they repeated the second verse.

There could be no doubt about the sincerity of the club members as to their enjoyment of life, judging from the ardour with which they sang "I Love Life" by Mana-Zucca, and they repeated it as an encore.

While the last group of songs by the quartet offered a strange juxtaposition of compositions, each song in itself was well sung. The songs were "In Monte Oliveti" (14th century) by Croce; "Villanella" Donati; "Dieons le Chapelet" Breton Canticle and "La Boiteuse a Liege" Street Song. The ladies graciously sang an encore.

A rollicking song sung with by the Mendelssohn Club "Cornish Fiddler's Song" by Richards Gaines and it was very received. It was followed by exquisite gem of a song, "Now the Crimson Petal" by Andrews.

The program closed with a that brought forth such rou applause and laughter that it be repeated. It was "The Trust" by Clokey.

After the concert the membe the club and their guests adjo to the Governor Clinton Hotel w the usual banquet and info music was thoroughly enjoyed.
